FOLLOWERS OF F.D.R. LOSE IN VIRGINIA

Voters in Three West Virginia Contests Renominate Roosevelt Men.

By the Associated Press.
TENNESSEE—Voters today will decide great Browning-Crump fight as bitterest primary campaign in state's history comes to a climax.

MISSOURI—Senator Bennett Champ Clark, opponent of some Roosevelt policies, won the Democratic senatorial nomination overwhelmingly in Tuesday's primaries. Judge James M. Douglas, backed by Governor Lloyd C. Stark, won the Democratic supreme court short-term nomination from Judge James V. Billings, supported by the Kansas City Pen-dergast organization.

KANSAS—Senator George McGill, administration supporter, won Democratic senatorial nomination; former Governor Clyde Reed, Republican, will oppose him; Republicans nominated State Senator Payne Ratner for Governor to oppose Governor Walter A. Huxman, unopposed in primary.

VIRGINIA—Representative Howard Smith and former Representative Colgate Darden defeated William E. Dodd Jr. and Representative Norman Hamilton, both avowed Roosevelt followers, for two seats in the house of representatives.

WEST VIRGINIA—Three Roosevelt supporters—Representatives Ramsay, Edmiston and Johnston—won Democratic renomination.

TENNESSEE DECIDES BITTEREST RACE TODAY

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Aug. 3.—(UP)—Tennessee's most bitter primary campaign will be climaxed tomorrow when Democrats decide whether to return to the senate the millionaire labor leader, George L. Berry, whose appointment was made because of White House pressure but whose defeat now is sought by the New Deal.

Berry's principal opponents in the Democratic primary—equivalent to election in such state-wide races—are Tom Stewart and Representative H. Ridley Mitchell.

Crump Backs Stewart.
Stewart has the support of the powerful Memphis political machine headed by Ed H. Crump. Stewart was famous 13 years ago when he headed the state's prosecution of Thomas Scopes at the Dayton, Tenn., "monkey trial." He has campaigned as a "friend of President Roosevelt" and an exponent of full development of the Tennessee Valley Authority.

Mitchell has based his campaign on his record, pointing to his support of TVA, the wages and hours bill and other New Deal measures. He accused his opponents of "reg-

To Leave Gas Company

W. W. WINTER.

UTILITY EXECUTIVE LEAVES POST HERE

W. W. Winter, Gas Company President, Will Become Salt Firm Official

W. W. Winter, president of the Atlanta Gas Light Company and well known in Atlanta and southern business and utility circles, has resigned to accept the presidency of the Jefferson Island Salt Company, it was announced last night.

Winter, who has been in Atlanta six and a half years, will have his headquarters at Louisville, Ky. He will be succeeded as head of the Atlanta Gas Light Company by H. Carl Wolf, of Muncie, Ind. Winter said last night he will probably leave Atlanta "about the middle of the month," when Wolf will assume duties here.

Besides serving as president of the Atlanta Gas Light Company, Winter was president of the Macon Gas Company, Georgia Public Utilities Company, Florida Public Utilities Company, Mobile Gas Service Corporation and Mississippi Public Service Company, all posts he now has resigned.

He becomes president of the Jefferson Island Salt Company and executive vice president and general manager of the Jefferson Island Salt Mining Company. The mines are at Jefferson Island, La.

Winter came here from Mobile. He is a director of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, Druid Hills Golf Club and Atlanta Freight Bureau, and holds memberships in East Lake Country, Capital City and Piedmont Driving Clubs.

He is vice chairman of the national advertising committee of the American Gas Association.

Wolf, only 40 years old, resigned positions as president of Central Indiana Gas Company and Hoosier Gas Company, both of Muncie, to accept his new post. L. C. Bradley, president of Consolidated Electric & Gas Company and vice president of Stone & Webster Service Corporation, under which Atlanta Gas Light Company is an operating subsidiary, said the "resignation of Winter was accepted with deepest regret."

He added that Winter was considered one of the utility unit's "most valuable men."

Atlanta Father's Plea to Hoover Traps Vendor of Obscene Books

An Atlanta father's plea to J. Edgar Hoover that his children and the children of others were being furnished with obscene literature yesterday resulted in two raids here and the arrest of a man who twice before had refused the law on similar charges.

The raids were conducted at an Edgewood avenue news stand and at a residence on Glendale terrace. The man arrested gave his name as Allen Munday. He was granted a hearing before United States Commissioner E. S. Griffith late yesterday afternoon and held for the federal grand jury under $1,000 bond.

FBI agents revealed that the raids were the result of a com-

MEXICO REJECTS WASHINGTON PLEA FOR ARBITRATION

President Cardenas Sets Precedent for Oil Settlement Talks in Land Expropriation Decision.

ANSWER DASHES HOPES OF MANY

Note Says There Is No Real Necessity for Even Deferred Compensation.

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 3.—(UP)—President Cardenas tonight rejected the United States proposal to arbitrate the agrarian land controversy, involving properties expropriated from Americans, and set a precedent for future discussions relating to the seizure of foreign-owned oil holdings.

In a note handed to American Ambassador Joseph Daniels by Foreign Secretary Eduardo Hay, the president agreed, however, to discuss with the United States the value of the properties affected, both Mexican and American-owned, but insisted the time and manner of indemnification is purely a question of Mexican law.

The note was signed by Hay and addressed to Daniels in reply to one given Dr. Francisco Castillo Najera, Mexican ambassador in Washington, by Secretary of State Cordell Hull on July 21.

Will Press Reform.

The text of the note revealed clearly President Cardenas' decision to proceed with his program of social reform, based on the aims of the Mexican revolution of 1910 which overthrew the 40-year dictatorship of General Porfirio Diaz. The note twitted the United States on its refusal to respect the Chamizal award, favorable to Mexico, and after citing the "principle of equality between nationals and foreigners" in the American republics, implied that the United States sought treatment for its citizens in Mexico not accorded Mexicans themselves.

The Chamizal Case.

(State Department officials in Washington explained the Chamizal case referred to in the Mexican note rejecting an American proposal to arbitrate the agrarian land controversy concerned a boundary dispute caused by a shift in the Rio Grande's course.

(A shift in the river at El Paso, Texas, caused approximately 600 acres of land previously on the Mexican side of the Rio Grande to become part of the territory on the American side. Subsequently buildings were erected on the land, which had been taken over by El Paso.

(Mexico sought a settlement and the case was referred to an international commission, composed of one American, one Canadian and one Mexican representative. A majority decision favorable to Mexico was rendered in 1910, but it was rejected by the United States. Officials could not recall details of the commission's proposed award.)

Cardenas' reply dashed the

WOMAN KILLED BY EX-DEPUTY, DWYER CLAIMS

Maine Youth Tells Jury His Version of Bizarre Slayings, Implicating Father of Sweetheart.

STILL LOVES GIRL, 19-YEAR-OLD SAYS

Mrs. Littlefield Slain After Learning of Mate's Death While on Call.

SOUTH PARIS, Maine, Aug. 3.—(UP)—Paul N. (Buddy) Dwyer testified late today that former Deputy Sheriff Francis M. Carroll slew Mrs. James G. Littlefield as well as her doctor-husband.

Carroll strangled Mrs. Littlefield early on the morning of last October 15 when she accused him of murdering her husband less than 30 hours earlier, Dwyer told the Oxford county jury that must decide whether the ousted law officer will go to prison for the rest of his life.

Thus Dwyer made his bid for complete exoneration in the Littlefield murder case and a possible pardon. He pleaded guilty to the murder of the doctor last December 2 and was sentenced to life imprisonment. Though he also confessed the murder of Mrs. Littlefield at the time of his arrest, he never was tried for that crime.

Charges Threats.

Today Dwyer testified he confessed only because the "real slayer"—Carroll—had threatened to kill him, too.

A hushed, packed courtroom listened tensely to the slim, 19-year-old youth as he recounted for the first time the "true" story of New England's most bizarre double murder.

Forced by Carroll to drive away in the doctor's own automobile with Littlefield's body stuffed in the rear trunk, Dwyer said, he went directly to the Littlefield home.

He told Mrs. Littlefield, he said, the doctor had run over two men and wanted to meet her in Boston. Littlefield sent him to drive her to her husband, Dwyer said he told Mrs. Littlefield.

Boston Journey.

Mrs. Littlefield joined him, Dwyer testified, and they set out for Boston. That was the night of last October 13, only a few hours after Carroll allegedly kicked, bludgeoned and finally garroted the doctor.

En route they became lost and arrived in Concord, N. H., where they took hotel rooms under assumed names, Dwyer said. Next day, he continued, he told Mrs. Littlefield he had talked with the doctor and arranged to meet him in New Hampshire.

They set out for Manchester, N. H., Dwyer said, but again became lost and arrived in Somerville, Massachusetts.

Tells of Murder.

In Somerville, Dwyer said, he broke down and told Mrs. Littlefield her husband had been slain by Carroll. They decided to return to South Paris and confront Carroll, he said.

Arriving in South Paris shortly after midnight the morning of October 15, Dwyer said, they drew abreast of Carroll's house just as he was leaving in his own automobile.

"I followed him," Dwyer said.

Floyd Taxes Raised, Exemptions Blamed

ROME, Ga., Aug. 3.—Floyd county board of roads and revenues today raised the county tax one dollar per thousand and placed blame for the increase on state legislative acts.

The board declared tax exemption laws caused the county to lose $60,000 while state funds to offset this loss totaled only $7,000.

Barnesville's Pride in REA Dims Threat of Politics

Citizens Want Georgians To Know City Regrets F.D.R. Hubbub.

Turning on of Power Will Mark Attainment of Farmers' Dream.

By LAMAR Q. BALL.
BARNESVILLE, Ga., Aug. 3.—Lamar county asked its Georgia neighbors today to listen calmly to the true story of just what it has in mind for that day of days, next Thursday, August 11.

As everybody in Georgia knows, President Roosevelt will be in Barnesville that day. And, as everybody in Georgia knows, President Roosevelt will have something to say to his Georgia friends from a platform built on the green spread of Summers Field.

Just what the President will say, no one in Barnesville dares guess.

"Mind of Own."

"The President, of course, has a mind of his own," agree town leaders as they share smiles of experience with one another.

But what Barnesville wants the world and Georgians in particular to know, is that this town is not offering itself to the voters of Georgia as a political Appomattox on that eventful August 11.

"If politics," they say, "enters into this celebration of ours, it will be none of our doing. The President has an important job in Barnesville on August 11. No one ever knows just what the President will say at any time, but we do know that he will have something to say about the long fight we have made to bring electricity into the rural homes hereabouts. We made a fight that the President admires—we know that. Everything else will be incidental."

Forecasting Thoughts.

And that's just how Lamar county feels about the hubbub created by political sharpshooters who are forecasting the President's thoughts on August 11.

Lamar county is priding itself just now on the effectiveness of

Avoidance of Full-Fledged War By Russia, Japan Held Probable

Both Nations Have Reasons to Keeping Rein, War Correspondent Says.

Editor's Note—The following dispatch from Webb Miller, general European manager of the United Press and chief war correspondent for 20 years, gives the background of the current conflict between Japan and Soviet Russia.

By WEBB MILLER.

LONDON, Aug. 3.—Russia and Japan probably do not intend to let their "pocket war" on the Manchukuoan-Siberian-Korean frontiers reach the proportions of a formal and full-fledged war, foreign observers here believe.

Both nations have preponderant reasons for keeping the situation from getting out of hand. That does not rule out the likelihood of heavy fighting, with limited commitments in the number of troops involved and the area covered.

Both, for sufficient reasons, seemingly will let the incidents which before the World War would have resulted in an immediate "full dress" war pass for the time being, except for retaliations. That policy has been followed by both nations in the last two years, during which scores of armed clashes have occurred which normally would have been critical.

Japan is so deeply involved in China that she probably will go to great lengths to avoid involvement with Soviet Russia. Furthermore, the Japanese economic situation has shown signs of rapid deterioration. The Japanese realize that war with Russia, on top

Kennedy, wife of the chairman of the program committee, is shown marking the highways to help guide the thousands of visitors expected when President Roosevelt presses the switch that will start electricity flowing into more than 700 rural homes in Lamar, Pike, Monroe and Upson counties August 11. Barnesville is all set.

TOKYO INDICATES DESIRE FOR PEACE

Nipponese Say They Will Hold Changkufeng But Not Advance Further.

LONDON, Thursday, Aug. 4. (UP)—The Daily Express said today its powerful radio station had picked up a broadcast from Khabarovsk, Russia, reporting the commander of the Soviet forces had hoisted "the red flag of victory" on Changkufeng Hill, disputed point on the Manchoukuan-Siberian frontier where bitter fighting with Japanese has been in progress.

The paper quoted the broadcast as stating Japan had rushed reinforcements totaling 35,000 men and 400 war planes to the area and as ending with "Hello, Tokyo. We are not afraid."

TOKYO, Aug. 4.—(Thursday)—

(P)—Soviet Russians threw four battalions against Changkufeng and Shachofeng at 10:30 p. m. Wednesday (8:30 a. m., Atlanta time, Wednesday) but met a repulse in which they lost 200 men, a Japanese army communique said today.

The Russians advanced in a dense fog, Japanese reported, but their ranks were exposed when Japanese suddenly fired "thousands of flares" into the sky throwing a ghoully light over the battle.

The Soviets abandoned 15 tanks and 25 pieces of light artillery, advances from the front related. Japanese casualties were not stated.

250 Tanks Massed.

The number of men in the three attacking battalions was not estimated by the Japanese war office, but it was said 250 tanks had been concentrated in the area by the Red army forces.

This was believed to be part of the reinforcements which Japanese said yesterday Soviet Russia was moving up to the far southeastern corner of Siberia in the disputed border zone facing Japan's Korea and Manchoukuo.

Despite the daily encounters, Japanese official quarters insisted

MRS. J. H. RUSSELL DIES IN 86TH YEAR

Sister of Ex-Congressman
Frank Clark.

Mrs. Harriett W. Russell, sister of former Congressman Frank Clark, of Florida, died Tuesday night in a private hospital after an illness of three months. She was 85 years old. Born in Eufaula, Ala., she was the daughter of Captain John W. and Emiline Keels Clark. After her marriage to James H. Russell, prominent Georgia cotton merchant, she made her home in Newnan for many years. A resident of Atlanta for the last 20 years, she lived at 357 North avenue, N.E. She retained her membership in the Newnan Baptist church. Surviving, in addition to her brother, are a daughter, Mrs. H. B. Hardaway, Chatham, Va., and a granddaughter, Miss Sarah Parrott, Newnan, Ga. Funeral services will be announced by H. M. Patterson & Son.

Leah Ray (Mrs. Werblin, Please) Here Again

New Name and 'Sonny's' Antipathy Toward Black-Eyed Peas Problem.

By LEE ROGERS, Motion Picture Editor.

Leah Ray has two problems—teaching her public to call her Mrs. Werblin and convincing "hubby" that black-eyed peas are good to eat.

The lovely brunette announced emphatically here yesterday that she has given up her screen and radio career "because commuting by transcontinental airplane is a little trying."

Miss Ray married D. A. (Sonny) Werblin "four months, five days—and five hours ago." At least it had been that long when she and her husband were talking at their hotel last night just before dinner.

Southeastern Office.

Werblin works for Music Corporation of America in New York and he and his wife were in Atlanta to arrange for the opening of a southeastern office here.

"Sonny and I tried commuting before we married and it didn't work. There'll be no more movies or orchestras for me."

Leah's last appearance in Atlanta was three years ago at the Tech finals when she sang with Phil Harris and his orchestra. Until yesterday Atlanta meant only the naval armory and a nearby hotel.

Last Picture.

Her last picture was "Walking Down Broadway" in which she was starred with Dixie Dunbar and Michael Whalen. Previously she appeared in several Shirley Temple pictures and with Winchell and Bernie. She had more fun in "Walking Down Broadway" than any.

"That Hollywood director who said there were no beautiful co-eds certainly did let himself in for it. I'm glad those Emory girls took him down. Of course there can't be many college girls in Hollywood."

"If a girl stops to go to college, by the time she gets to Hollywood they give her character roles." Leah said movies are more fun than singing on the radio and with orchestras because "it was always different and you never had to sing the same songs over and over and over."

Glamorous Leah Ray, here yesterday, rallied to the defense of the college beauty. "Of course there are beautiful co-eds. That Hollywood director is crazy. The only reason you don't see glamorous co-eds in movies is because if a girl takes time out to go to college, by time she finishes the directors give her character roles."

But, the 23-year-old Norfolk (Va.) girl said the "most fun of all" was teaching Sonny what real southern food is.

"I never realized before it made a difference what color garbage can was in the kitchen."

Mr. Werblin said it didn't—once.

MRS. MARTHA DAY
DIES AT AGE OF 90

Daughter of Confederate, Widow of Union Soldier, Born in 1848.

Mrs. Martha Jean Day, daughter of a Confederate trooper, and widow of a Union soldier, died yesterday afternoon at the home of a grandson, E. G. Brooks, at 379 Augusta avenue, S. E. She was 90 years old.

Born in Atlanta in 1848, she was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Reid, early settlers here. During the siege of Atlanta, with her husband fighting in Virginia, Mrs. Reid refueled with her children to Alabama, where her daughter met and fell in love with Edwin Day, a Union soldier.

After the war, with the Reids re-established in Atlanta, Day came here, entered the mercantile business, and the two were married. He died about 50 years ago. Funeral services will be held at 3 o'clock this afternoon in the chapel of J. Austin Dillon, with the Rev. E. L. Barlow officiating. Burial will be in Oakland cemetery.

Pallbearers will be W. T. Brooks, J. F. Gee Jr., J. D. Johnson, P. H. Muller Jr., F. L. Bryant and J. M. Hall.

EXCESS INTOXICATIONCHARGED TO HEIRESS

SARASOTA, Fla., Aug. 3.—(UP)—Potter Dorsey Palmer III, youthful scion of a wealthy Chicago family, today filed a cross bill of divorce, charging his wife Pauline Warren Palmer, New York heiress to a grocery chain store fortune, with excessive intoxication.

The cross bill was filed in circuit court where Mrs. Palmer last July 18, petitioned for divorce. Details of her bill of complaint were not made public.

ARBITRATION PLAN

President Cardenas Tells Hull Issue Is an Internal Problem.

size farms. The seizures have been effected over a period of 10 years, beginning in 1927. The expropriations often have been deferred to the United States-Mexican General Claims Commission but no claims have ever been paid in the belief.

The note reiterated President Cardenas' doctrine of handling agrarian and presumably petroleum questions as purely internal affairs.

It declared that the New Deal's reform program undoubtedly would have expropriated things without paying for them if the United States had not been a wealthy nation.

"No Principle." The note contended the Mexican government "maintains that no principle, universally accepted in theory nor realized in practice, is found in international law which makes obligatory payment of immediate compensation nor even deferred compensation for expropriations of a general impersonal character such as those Mexico carried out in effecting redistribution of land."

It added that "agrarian reform is not only one aspect of the program for social betterment . . . but it is also the most important fulfillment of the demands of the Mexican people who sacrificed the very lives of their sons in a revolution in order to achieve this end."

"Arbitration is unnecessary," the note continued, "and would, moreover, be unlawful under the terms of the Washington treaty since procedures of execution for compliance with obligations already recognized by Mexico cannot be the subject of arbitration and must be determined according to her economic conditions, which cannot fail to be taken into account by a friendly nation, nor can they be the object of decision by an international court, which, in seeking to impose a given economic organization upon Mexico, would mortally wound her right to organize herself autonomously, the very foundation of her sovereignty."

"In view, thereof, I permit myself to invite the government of your excellency to name a representative who, together with a representative designated by my government, will fix the value of the properties affected and the manner of payment . . . to both Mexican nationals and foreigners."

"The government of Mexico is ready to begin immediately discussions of the terms of this agreement."

Committees Named To Aid State Senate Candidate's Campaign.

J. H. Merritt, president of the Tammany Club, was named chairman of the campaign committee of Robert Carpenter, candidate for the state senate from Fulton county, at a meeting last night at a downtown hotel. Merritt is former president of the West End Business Association.

Other committee officers are J. W. LeBlanc, vice chairman, and Mrs. Fannie Boorstein, secretary. Subcommittees have been appointed in charge of organizing ward clubs: C. E. Pressley and S. T. Schell, co-chairmen in charge of speaking engagements, and Bill Kemp, Leon D. Wofford, H. E. Ivey and Jim Flynn were appointed to head a special committee on crafts and trades. A. Steve Clay, F. L. Fleming and Thomas L. Lewis were named members of the outlying districts committee; while J. J. Rucker, Nap Rucker, Dr. T. M. Ezzard, Cliff Vaughn and Mrs. Bill Bowden were appointed heads of the old Milton county committee.

Introduced by W. T. Knight, councilman from the third ward, Carpenter expressed himself as opposed to any type of merger of county or city governments, or any of their departments, and opposed to any extension of the city limits in Atlanta. He also went on record as favoring civil service and pensions for all county employees.

The records showed that in 1935 Munday and another man were arrested when the Atlanta city police raided an allegedly obscene motion picture show they were accused of running.

Both men were sentenced in the Fulton superior court but were freed after serving only a few months.

Munday made bond shortly after it had been fixed by Commissioner Griffith.

HEARING IS CALLED ON NEW FIRE BILLS

Proposals Are Less Drastic
Than Those Following Hotel Blaze.

Proposed fire safety laws, much less drastic than first planned by city officials following the disastrous Terminal hotel fire, will be given a public hearing next Tuesday morning, City Building Inspector Bowen said yesterday.

Drafted by a special council committee, the proposed ordinances will require sprinkler

PENSIONS GIVEN TO TWO POLICEMEN

Captain Butler, P. B. Dailey Allowed $60 Month.

Pensions to two members of the police department were granted yesterday by the police pension board.

Captain G. T. Butler, member of the force since 1905, retires on August 29. He has already left the department, however, having taken a vacation on an accumulation of time off due him.

The board granted a pension to P. B. Dailey, veteran of 13 years service, because of permanent disability. Dailey said he was injured several years ago while on duty. He had been off for nearly a year. Pensions are $60 a month.

systems and automatic alarms and better fire escapes for some buildings but would not involve buildings constructed of fire-resistant materials.

Briefly, the recommended ordinances provide: Enclosure of elevator and dumb-waiter shafts in fire-resistant material; installation of sprinkler systems in large basements where inflammables are stored; automatic or manual fire alarms for buildings where 10 or more persons occupy space above the second floor or where as many as 25 persons are on the second floor; installing or improving fire escapes and exits.

"The proposals will leave it to the building inspector and the fire chief to determine the number of fire escapes and exits necessary for safety in these buildings," Bowen said.

Property owners would be given six months to comply with the provisions of the proposed laws. The public hearing will be held in time for the special fire safety investigating committee to make its report to council at the August 15 meeting.

GREAT AIR BATTLE RAGES AT HANKOW

Japanese Assert 32 of Enemy Air Craft Shot Down and 7 Bombed.

SHANGHAI, Aug. 4.—(Thursday)—(AP)—Both Chinese and Japanese claimed victory today in a large-scale air battle near Hankow, provisional Chinese capital and target of the Japanese drive up the Yangtze river.

Japanese asserted that a Japanese air fleet engaged 54 Chinese planes, shot down 32, and destroyed seven more in a bombing raid yesterday on Hankow which ended with only two Japanese craft missing.

Chinese declared they lost only six planes and brought down 12 Japanese raiders, including one bomber.

Japanese ground forces were admitted by Chinese to have entered Hwangmei, slightly more than 100 air miles east of Hankow, but Chinese said the invaders were "under water." The city was said to have been flooded by rising Yangtze river waters which poured through broken dikes.

"The warfarer prevented repair of the broken embankments," Chinese said, in apparent denial of Japanese charges that the dikes were being cut deliberately to halt the Japanese advance.

Official Japanese reports of the Hankow air battle said "all efforts of China to rebuild her air force have been pulverized by Japanese attacks." Japanese said they virtually had destroyed a Chinese air fleet of American, British and Russian planes.

"The morale of the Chinese fliers was low," a navy communique stated. "They sought to flee but were pursued and shot down."

Hankow dispatches reported that the battle was fought some miles away from that city. After the air fight, 18 Japanese heavy bombers accompanied by 10 pursuit planes appeared over Hankow and bombed railroad approaches and factories in the northern section.

COURT DISMISSES PHOTO ACT TEST

Not Enough Damage Shown, Bench Rules.

Petition of K. L. Connor, Florence (S. C.) photographer, seeking an injunction against Governor Rivers and the State Board of Photographic Examiners from restraining him from plying his trade in Georgia, was dismissed for lack of jurisdiction in an opinion handed down yesterday by a three-judge federal district court. The opinion was signed by Judge Leon McCord, of the fifth district court of appeals; Judge William H. Barrett, of the Southern Georgia district, and Judge E.

Marvin Underwood, of the Northern district of Georgia.

In holding for dismissal, the court said no evidence was shown that the petitioner's business was impaired by the act to the extent of $3,000 or more and that, to come within jurisdiction of the court, that much damage must be shown.

G. O. P. Forum Concludes That Pump Must Be Repaired for Priming.

CHICAGO, Aug. 3. — (AP) — A forum conducted by the Republican program committee concluded today government spending as a means of inducing permanent recovery of private enterprise has been a "complete failure."

James H. Douglas Jr., of Chicago, leader of the discussion of financial policies, reported the participants agreed the "principal New Deal approach" to the problem of recovery was "spending" and in addition calling it a failure, arrived at these conclusions: "Pump-priming does not produce effective results unless the pump itself is repaired."

"Spending should be limited to essential relief and, possibly in a period of declining private enterprise, to useful public works, but any such spending must necessarily be accompanied by aggressive attempts to correct economic maladjustments."

Jay N. (Ding) Darling, president of the National Wild Life Federation and former chief of the United States biological survey, informed the committee that 3,000,000 of the nation's idle could be employed if barren farm land and cut-over forests were restored.

SOIL CONSERVATION EXPLAINED BY TVA

Director McAmis Tells Committee of Experiments.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Aug. 3. — (AP) — Experimental activities of the Tennessee Valley Authority in the field of agriculture were explained today to a joint congressional committee investigating the government agency.

J. C. McAmis, director of the Agricultural Relations Department, told the committee his department was concerned principally with promotion of soil conservation through distribution of phosphate fertilizer manufactured at Muscle Shoals.

The witness said the program had been confined largely to the seven Tennessee valley states, but that any state might participate by complying with contract provisions required by the TVA. Dr. Arthur E. Morgan, former chairman of the authority, has criticized the program as "not national in scope."

CROPS HARD HIT BY CONTINUED RAINS

Serious Damage to Cotton, Corn Reported by Mindling Here.

Rain was forecast for the eighth consecutive day for Atlanta by the United States Weather Bureau yesterday. Skies will remain partly overcast during a greater part of the day with temperature extremes ranging from a minimum of 70 degrees to a maximum of 86 degrees. Extremes yesterday were between 71 and 85 degrees.

Precipitation yesterday measured .40 of an inch, bringing the total amount of rainfall in the city since Tuesday to .94 of an inch. The rains are widespread locally and part of a general downpour blanketing the state, the weatherman said.

Effects of the wet weather of the preceding week on crops seems to have been intensified during the last seven days, according to George W. Mindling, meteorologist. Weevil infestation and damage to cotton has become worse than at any other time during the last few years, he said, and large quantities of figs, tomatoes, peaches and butter beans have been lost through rotting in the fields.

Damage by weevils to the cotton crop is serious and widespread, Mindling said. Fruiting has ended in some east-central counties, where general deterioration is reported. While some bolls are opening in the south, although the wet weather has prevented picking, the crop in the vicinity of Newnan is reported to be almost a failure due to more than three weeks of damp weather.

While much corn has been spoiled on low grounds, Mindling said that good growth is reported generally in the northern half of the state on well drained fields, although the ground is too wet for cultivation. Rain has had an adverse effect on sweet potato crops, especially around Camilla and Albany and in southwestern counties generally, the weatherman said.

Regarding truck crops, Mindling said that melons are reported in good condition but that much spoilage of other crops was reported from large areas in the southwest, central-west and near the mountains where tomatoes and butter beans were rotting in the fields.

Other crops were faring fairly well. Peanuts were reporting good growths generally while weather was said to be favorable for pastures, sorghum and cow peas.

PAN AMERICAN PLANS TRANS-PACIFIC SERVICE

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 3. — (AP) — Pan-American Airways announced plans today for a modified weekly trans-Pacific clipper service.

Clipper departures, as before, will be on Wednesdays at 3 p. m. (P. S. T.) but on every third Wednesday, under present plans, there will be no departure.

Pan-American delayed this week's departure until Saturday, August 6. The first regular Wednesday flight under the new schedule will be August 17.

Bee Sting Kills Gardner, Third in Last Fortnight

IRVINGTON, N. Y., Aug. 3. — (UP) — A bee stung Svend Hansen, a gardener, last year. He was revived after being unconscious for several hours.

Today, Hansen collapsed and died after working in his garden. Dr. Amos O. Squire said his death was due to poison from the sting of a bee.

Hansen was the third person in the United States to die from the sting of a bee in the last fortnight. The others were a woman of 52 and a girl of 12, Bankhead Says 'Unfair' Practices Have Retarded Growth of South.

AUBURN, Ala., Aug. 3.—(UP)—Development of the south has been retarded by "burdensome and oppressive" sectional legislation, Senator John H. Bankhead, Democrat, Ala., told Alabama farmers at state farm and home week celebration today.

Bankhead's prepared address was read by his brother, Speaker of the House William B. Bankhead. Illness prevented the senator attending.

"The first gun fired on Fort Sumter started a series of federal enactments intended to secure benefits to other sections of the United States at the expense of southern people," the senator said. "That spirit still dominates the action of congress whenever an issue is presented that involves a sectional conflict of business interests."

The senator charged that "unfair and discriminatory freight rates have operated to retard the growth of the south," and said that "since the days of the War Between the States, the south has been the happy hunting ground for salesmen of the products of so-called 'infant industries' now grown into giant monopolies, but still collecting protective tariff taxes from our southern people."

"It is indeed fortunate that some people north of the Mason-Dixon line are beginning to realize that sectional legislation of a burdensome and oppressive economic character has retarded the development of industry, the increase of incomes and the accumulation of wealth in the cotton belt commensurate with progress of similar domains of business activity in other sections of the country."

Georgia Considers Camp Chaplains

Chairman A. O. Blalock yesterday invited the Rev. Harvey W. Wages, Baptist minister of Thomasville, to explain his proposal for a state-wide system of religious services in prison camps to the state board of penal administration Monday.

The board will meet at the Tattnell prison. Blalock said the minister advocated some form of regular Sunday services at prison camps and said he would enlist aid of other ministers to carry out the program.

The chairman said under present regulations, conduct of religious services was left to wardens of the various camps. The Tattnell prison has a chaplain.

A. W. ANGEL BUYS PIANO STORE HERE

Will Change Name of Former Branch.

Purchase of the business and good will of the Atlanta branch of the Jesse French Piano Company, of Mobile, Ala., by Arthur W. Angel was announced yesterday. The sale was consummated Saturday. No consideration was named.

Angel, who has served as manager of the store he opened at 66 North Pryor street 18 months ago, said yesterday he planned to change the name of the company to the Arthur W. Angel Company, and will augment the present stock of musical instruments.

A native of Winston-Salem, N. C., Angel was associated with the W. W. Kimball Piano Company, of Chicago, as a dealer prior to his affiliation with the Jesse French Company. He represented that company in various cities in the United States before coming to Atlanta.

"I NEVER SAW OLD FOLKS STARVE"

At the bottom of the adjoining column to this, under the heading, "Editorial of the Day," there is today published an editorial from The Columbia (S. C.) State. It is in the form of an interview with a "long, lean man, tanned as leather," evidently a Carolina farmer.

An independent Carolina farmer. For he expresses views that are rarely put into practice today. Views which bear the rich, free flavor of the pioneering days, when the south and America was first opened to the white man. When individualistic souls who loved freedom better than security risked their all to carve a living for themselves out of the wilderness.

"What do you want the government to do for you?" this Carolina man was asked, and he replied "Nothin'! Nothin' at all." He then tells how he has made his living for 75 years—growing cotton and grain. Making moonshine liquor and selling it. Now he plans to feed hogs and cattle. But the one thing he sought, through it all, is independence.

Then the reporter asked what he thought of governmental support for old people. "If the government does, nobody else will. If the government does not, somebody will. I never saw any old folks starve, have you?" was the old man's reply.

In that sentence is the key to a change in idea which has been acquired by the American people during the last decade. Acquired because it has been forced upon them, perhaps. That is, the belief that it is no longer necessary to provide, personally, for the unfortunate. "Let the government do it," is the attitude. Even sons and daughters, many of them, feel they are no longer under obligation to care for their own aged parents, because the government will do it.

Late reports show that more than 50 per cent of the people of Fulton county, 65 years of age or older, are depending on public relief for their support.

Politics has taken over charity. It is rapidly becoming a public function, something to be met through tax money, instead of a personal obligation upon the individual, or the local, community group. People have been taught it is no longer necessary to act the Good Samaritan, that the government will provide.

Politicians make much of the money expended "to keep people from starving." They would give the impression that, if there had been no relief, no government entry into the field of charity, tens of thousands of American citizens would have starved to death.

Yet, as the Carolina farmer said, old folks never starved. Before the days of organized "relief" there was always somebody to keep the wolf on the outer side of the door. What has happened is simply that today it is the government that does it. It has become the "somebody" in the case.

It may be better, more humane and more efficient to handle the responsibility toward the poor and the aged, in this manner. Or it may be the reverse, more machine-like and wasteful. In either event, something valuable to the spirit of America has been lost. That is the exercise of the individual quality of generosity and sympathy for the unfortunate.

And, in the words of our Carolina friend, under either system, "I never saw any old folks starve, have you?"

WHY?

The case of Pauline Aldinger and Robert Brown presents a sharp indictment of modern civilization. Mrs. Aldinger is 19, the mother of an eight-month-old baby. Brown is an 18-year-old youth. Both are in jail at El Dorado, awaiting extradition to New Mexico. There, they will face trial for the murder of a rancher.

Under usual circumstances here are two persons in their teens who should be on the threshold of useful, happy lives. Here are two young people to whom life should be opening as a thing of vast potentialities for good. Instead, life leers at them as an evil thing. They face either long terms in prison or a return to the outcast life they have been living for the past several months.

Must any life be so difficult and deadly? While it is true murder should not be condoned, is it quite fair to judge this couple by ordinary standards? Is it not possible that hardships of the present day aided in rubbing off the thin crust of what men call civilization?

It is within reason to assume that something outside the individual is responsible for the deplorable picture of a young mother sitting in a jail cell and callously relating a tale of murder. The conditions which made that possible cannot help but be on trial when Pauline Aldinger and Robert Brown come before a court of law.

THIS IS WAR

Reports from the Siberian-Manchoukuo border indicate Russia and Japan are already at war, regardless of such hair-line distinctions as formal declaration of hostilities. When troops of two nations clash in large numbers, employing airplanes, tanks, heavy artillery and charging infantry, the condition is war, despite all technical disavowals for diplomatic purposes.

The bulk of dispatches dealing with this new area of conflict have come, so far, from Tokyo and it must be remembered, in reading them, that statements and claims by the Japanese military authorities may be actuated more for public effect than for truth. Charges of Russian aggression may easily be true. On the other hand, they may be mere propaganda, designed to whip the Japanese people into emotional resentment against a new enemy.

Both sides claim the fighting is the result of invasion by the enemy. Territory involved is in dispute, as to whether it is part of Manchoukuo or whether it belongs to the Soviet Union. Each claims to be fighting only on the defensive.

If the present fighting spreads, as now seems inevitable, into a war that involves the full resources of both countries, it will, in all probability, mean the end of Japan as the dominant power in the Orient. Already involved in an "undeclared war" with China which is taxing her to the utmost, the Japanese can never hope to be successful against another enemy of the strength of the Soviet, at the same time.

The great hope of the western world is that the new war will be confined to the far east. The certain weakening of either, or both powers involved, will cause little worry or regret among western nations.

The only danger of European involvement is through Germany. The Reich might, conceivably, see opportunity for aggression to its own east while Russia was involved against Japan.

However, the precarious financial condition of Germany today makes this extremely improbable. In fact, Germany's financial dilemma is one of the chief foundations of hope for maintenance of peace in Europe. Hitler, one of the principal sources of apprehension among European diplomats, is so close to national bankruptcy he is powerless to use his armed forces. At least, that is the report world observers give after viewing the financial perspective from Berlin.

HIGHWAY ILLUMINATION

It is a strange paradox that in this age of almost unlimited artificial illumination practically all of the nation's highways and mapy streets are no more effectively lighted, comparatively, than 150 years ago, when slow, lumbering coaches rattled over them instead of today's fast-moving motor vehicles. Astonishing progress has been made in developing light, but the conclusion is inescapable that distribution of it has lagged.

Night, on the highway, presents a problem entirely different from the difficulties encountered during the day. When it is remembered that approximately 60 per cent of all those killed in motor accidents during 1937 met death after dark, at a time when streets and roads were far less congested, if congested at all, the reason is apparently not far removed. It cannot be attributed entirely to fast or reckless driving. Inadequate illumination must share the blame.

Headlights, while of course essential to night driving, contribute very little toward general illumination. The reflective qualities of trees, roads, pedestrians and unlighted cars are exceedingly poor. In consequence the effectiveness of headlights is correspondingly reduced. And at times, unless dimmed at the approach of a car going in the opposite direction, they become a positive menace to safety.

Gradually, it is to be hoped, the nation's highways and streets can be so lighted as to at least remove the necessity for the glaring type of headlight. Would it not be logical, in time, to divert some part of the gasoline tax to make highways and streets safer at night for those who pay the tax?

'Mid affecting scenes, the Anglo-French understanding is renewed. France forgives British cooking, and the traveling Englishman will carry his own bath.

Long before Washington, the riding public sensed something amiss in railroad, when a dining-car breakfast averages higher than the line's common stock.

The 24th anniversary of the beginning of the World War was observed lately without cheers. How did that ever come out?

Editorial of the Day

"WHAT CAN GOVERNMENT DO FOR YOU?" (From The Columbia State.)

Over to one side was a long, lean man, tanned as leather. His Adam's apple ran its upward and downward courses swiftly, his eyes were keen. He looked to be interesting.

"What do you want the government to do for you?" he was asked.

"Nothin'! Nothin' at all. If you ask me, I'd say most of the laws on the books ought to be wiped off, and no new ones passed. Not that I care personally. The law, like I said, can't do anything for me or to me. I been makin' a living for 75 years, and I guess I can keep on, all right."

A suitable place for talking was located, and the self-reliant Carolinian continued.

"I been around," he said. "I've done lots of things. But mostly I'm a farmer, and nothin' can stop me. When the boll weevil come, I says, 'That bug ain't gonner ruin me.' I quit cotton cold, and went to grain. Then prohibition come, and I saw my chance. I blockaded, and made money at it too, selling some to prohibitionists. Then prohibition got over with, and repeal caught me with 75 gallons of good stuff on my hands. I took it to Columbia to a hotel and sold it 'thought any trouble at all, and quit blockadin'."

If they ever pass another fool prohibition law, I'll go back to it.

"Well, sir, I went right along with farmin' and making money out of grain and things. Now I see the government's gonner do something or other about us grain growers, but they'll never catch me! I aim to fence my place, put hogs and cattle inside the fences, and let 'em eat the grain. That'll get 'round that sellin' law, won't it? I guess they'll leave us grow hogs and cattle for a while. If they don't, I'll think up somethin' else. The government'll never get anything out of me!"

"What about old people?" the reporter asked. "Do you think the government should take care of them?"

"If the government does, nobody else will. If the government does not, somebody will. I never saw any old folks starve, have you?"

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

(Joseph Alsop and Robert Kintner are coming to Georgia at the time of President Roosevelt's visit to this state next week, and will write about the political situation in Georgia and South Carolina.)

FRIGHTENED BUSINESSMEN

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3.—You may not be hearing much of the anti-monopoly investigation, but the tremendous spectacle it's bound to prove already casts its shadow before. The most conspicuous phenomenon in Washington at the moment is a horde of large businessmen, hurrying about the city, crying out desperately for someone who can save them from the implacable investigators. This anti-monopoly investigation is being publicized these days. Once it was cheerfully flamboyant. Kate Chase was a national figure, and wicked Sam Ward, who married an Astor and entertained Oscar Wilde, was known all over America as "The King of the Lobby."

Kate was a fairly sinister creature, but Sam Ward was a charming and popular fellow. He used to feed friendly senators on beavers' tails stewed in champagne, and he once earned $5,000 by making a morning of a religious revival in Washington. He was a good and amusing him during the search for footwork until a crucial committee vote had been taken.

Now, however, the lobbying business is as sordidly commonplace as insect extermination or sewage disposal. Leaving on one side the representatives of the pressure groups, like the veterans, the people who serve business are a depressing array of spavined politicians, political lawyers, big and little fixers, boozy public relations men, and plain, old-fashioned scoundrels.

The only member of the company with the least touch of color is a reasonably pretty, fairly highly placed female politician from the south. She keeps a sort of salon-saloon, to the government habitues of which she introduces visiting tycoons. The flavor of her establishment was well described by herself when she was house-hunting. She had enthusiastically inspected another woman's pretty but feis side Georgian house sold in public, she said:

"Why, this is just exactly the kind of home I'd like to have, if I was free. But, you see, most of my friends are older gentlemen, and they do kind of like leather chairs and standing ashtrays."

SELLING AND DELIVERING

But the decay of the lobbying business, while a subject for a nostalgic, is not a deeply significant one. What is significant about lobbying is the light it casts on the average businessman's approach to his government. In effect, the businessman's dealings with the lobbyists betray an incredible ignorance of the whole governmental process of the New Dealers.

Take the anti-monopoly investigation, for example. The investigating committee is hog-tied by the investigation's original sponsors. The House Whiskers may be all sorts of other things, but they are not vengeful, and they are not responsive to political pressures. Indeed, they are probably as disinterested a set of men as the government has seen, and their reaction to efforts to "reach" them is invariably violent.

Under the auspices of W. Averell Harriman and the Business Advisory Council, a fairly sensible effort has been made to meet the anti-monopoly inquiry halfway. Sentinels L. Connelley, a personable broker, and his assistant, a Washington lobbyist in a handsome house. By bringing together such men as Trust-Buster Thurman Arnold and United States Steel's Edward Stettinius, he has managed to show each side that not all members of the other are devils incarnate.

But, at the moment at least, three large and terrified industries are also frantically searching for someone who can "put the fix" on the investigation. The investigation is a thing of the past. Washington have warned the industrialists that, where Kate Chase and Sam Ward used to deliver, today there is no one in the business of selling the government who can lay the goods on the line. The better lobbyists can obtain small favors, and, in the worst departments, they may still bring off an occasional big coup. But, by and large, even the small favors are usually like the chance to testify before a congressional committee, which a businessman once paid a local fixer $5,000 when he could have accomplished the same result with a simple letter to his senator.

GOVERNMENT OVER BUSINESS

The difficulty seems to lie in the fact that the average businessman can't or won't understand the change that has come over the government. Except for spasmodic rebellions, such as those of the first Roosevelt and Wilson, the government of the United States since the Civil War has subordinated itself to business. Now, for social reasons, the government is attempting to make business its subordinate. Under the circumstances, lobbyists are well-nigh useless.

It must be added that the official advisers of business have done little to clear up the misunderstanding. The business organizations have steadfastly refused to explain to the government, to their members, picturing it always as a capricious monstrosity. And the great New York law firms have led their business clients to believe they can escape the government by taking refuge in a labyrinth of legalism. Thus the situation prolongs itself.

CLEMSON OFFICIAL TO TALK TO MASONS

Dr. D. W. Daniel Will Speak at Fifth District Meeting Wednesday.

Dr. D. W. Daniel, dean of the school of general science, Clemson College and well-known humorist, will address the afternoon session of the annual meeting of fifth district Masons at Campbell High school, Fairburn, Wednesday.

Clarence L. Duncan, of Fairburn, district worshipful master, will be convention master of ceremonies. Principal speaker will be John L. Travis, of Savannah, state grand master. The convention represents 54 lodges in the district, with a membership totaling more than 10,000.

Dr. Daniel will be introduced by Dr. M. D. Collins, state superintendent of schools. The night session will be devoted to degree work and presentation of Atlanta Capitol View lodge's play, "The Builder."

Notables of Georgia Masonry who will attend are William M. Sapp, of Dalton, deputy grand master; J. Wilson Parker, Fairburn, senior grand warden; Dr. M. P. Agee, Augusta, junior grand warden; Judge Frank C. Jones, Thomasville, grand treasurer; Frank F. Baker, Macon, grand secretary; George Westmoreland, Jefferson, grand marshal; Rev. Zach C. Hayes Jr., Atlanta, grand chaplain; Rev. Firley Baum, Atlanta, associate grand chaplain; Zach Arnold, Fort Gaines, senior grand deacon; Dewey H. Wollstein, Rome, first grand steward; J. Henry Wilkinson, Augusta, third grand steward; and C. J. Owens, Newnan, grand tyler.

Flicker of Oil Lamps Yields to Progress

Out with the old and hurry for the new. Farmer H. L. Smith, president of the Lamar Electric Membership Association, is destroying the oil lamps around his home, to the delight of Mrs. Smith and their daughter, Elizabeth. Smith heads the cooperative which is bringing REA electricity into Lamar county.

its long battle to bring electric current into the farms of Lamar, Pike, Monroe and Upson counties—a group of homes that will turn approximately 700 by next Thursday—all of them to be fed by more than 200 miles of new electric lines.

It took two long years and a lot of running back and forth between Washington and Barnesville to put this deal across. Contracts have been drawn up, signed and torn up and new ones drawn up and signed and torn up. The rural folk down here in these four counties were determined that they would have electricity and they wanted it the New Deal way—brought to their homes by the Rural Electrification Administration of the national government. They kept up the fight and finally they had enough farmers to make it look worthwhile to the statisticians in Washington.

F. D. R. to Flick Switch.

President Roosevelt is coming to Barnesville next Thursday to flick the switch which will turn the current into those 700 homes in Lamar, Pike, Monroe and Upson counties, and congratulate those farmers on their laudable determination.

"It probably will be a revelation to some Georgians to learn that there is a praiseworthy reason behind the President's visit to Barnesville," they said here yesterday.

"Everyone in Georgia seems to believe that the President merely wanted to drop off somewhere in Georgia to say something about Senator George or Lawrence Camp and for no good reason picked on Barnesville."

The typical Barnesville citizen shudders if a visitor mentions politics. "Don't—don't—don't bring that up!" he pleads, gritting his teeth and clenching his fists.

"We want everyone in Georgia to come here to see our President," he argues. "But, for the love of Pete, let them come in the right way."

Barnesville hopes to play host to the whole of Georgia next Thursday. All along the highways leading into Barnesville they were out tacking signs on posts and trees yesterday, with arrows to guide the guests to the Summers Field arena.

Grass Trimmed. Squads of negroes were pushing lawn mowers over the grass in Summers Field yesterday. This athletic field of the Gordon Military College is the natural amphitheater where Barnesville's thousands of guests will gather

"When you were a tadpole and I was a fish
In the Paleozoic time,
And side by side on the ebbing tide
We sprawled through the ooze and slime..."

They call them "enchanted," according to William Beebe, because they are so hard to leave, but the islands of Galapagos Archipelago from which Franklin Roosevelt is returning have been left before, and with a cargo which may have commended itself to the President as he chose his own bill of lading. One hundred and three years in advance of Mr. Roosevelt there came to those islands a gentleman peer to the President and any other human being in distinction. He was Charles Darwin. Darwin visited the islands in 1835, and it was largely as a result of his study of plant and animal life there that he was able to support his famous theory of evolution and write his famous "Origin of Species." The lesson of Galapagos, in other words, is that the world moves, but that the motion is slow, that nature's ordinary way is the way of evolution rather than revolution, and that even when revolution comes it must be followed by periods of adaptation and adjustment.

Another famous gentleman who visited the Galapagos islands was Robinson Crusoe, the well-known emergency man and make-shift. But we, for one, hope that the President's affinities as he comes home will be with the scientist, not with the adventurer. We hope he comes with Darwinian determination upon slow adaptation and adjustment to the turn he himself has given evolution's wheel. We hope he comes satisfied that he has set his country upon a course that makes for men rather than for monkeys and willing now to let that course run. We hope he comes realizing that the New Deal is dead, and that the dealer must now permit the game to go on.

Nothing what he calls the current tendency to correct radio announcers, Raymond Comer, of Clover Bottom, Kentucky, writes us please to remind them that "d-a" is pronounced "day-a" and not "dott-a." And he hopes that when singers broadcast the good old hymn "What a Friend We Have in Jesus!" they will learn that "solace" is pronounced with under cross-examination by defense Attorney Chapman. "In front of Perley Ripley's house on First street, I drove up beside him."

"How did you attract his attention?" demanded Chapman.

"I honked the horn and he stopped. Mrs. Littlefield, a Littlefield, got out of her car and Carroll started to get out of his."

Woman Struck. "Someone had a gun. I don't know who it was, but it finally landed in Carroll's hands and he hit her over the head and pushed her back on the front seat. He climbed into the back seat and told me to drive to Turkey Hill."

"Where were you?" asked Chapman.

"I was in the driver's seat. We stopped on 'Prospect' avenue. It was there that Mrs. Littlefield was killed."

"Where were you?"

"I was sitting in the driver's seat. Mrs. Littlefield was beside me and Carroll was standing outside the car. He reached in and strangled her with his hands."

It was Dwyer's love affair with Carroll's daughter, Barbara, a comely 17-year-old brunette, whom he testified he still loves, that indirectly motivated the slaying of Dr. Littlefield, according to the state.

Dwyer testified he brought Dr. Littlefield to the Dwyer home the night of the murder to examine Barbara after Carroll had accused him of getting her "in trouble."

The youth declared he had informed the doctor Barbara already had confided to him that her father once had violated her and, when Carroll entered the house that night, Dr. Littlefield threatened to expose him as the seducer of his own daughter and send him to state prison.

Followed by Carroll. Dr. Littlefield went upstairs preparatory to examining Miss Carroll, Dwyer said, and was followed by Carroll. Dwyer testified he did not know whether Barbara was waiting in an automobile outside.

Shortly afterward he heard a commotion, Dwyer said, and, grabbing a wrench and a hammer, ran upstairs to find Carroll kicking the doctor.

Carroll took the hammer away from him, Dwyer said, and beat the doctor on the head. Finally, Dwyer said, Carroll garroted the physician with a belt from a pair of Dwyer's trousers hanging in the bathroom.

GOOD MORNING

By LOUIE D. NEWTON.

RED AND DUN.

Dr. L. R. Scarborough, president of the Southern Baptist Convention and guest preacher at Druid Hills Baptist church this week in an old-fashioned protracted meeting, told a story in his sermon Monday morning—a story about a yoke of oxen—Red and Dun.

"I learned to plow and to cuss when I was nine years old," said Dr. Scarborough, "and it all centered about Red and Dun. Red was the finest ox I ever saw and Dun was the meanest ox I ever saw. Red would do all you told him to do. Dun wouldn't do anything you told him to do. Red would never fail to let you down. Dun would never fail to let you down."

"I was plowing one day, breaking ground, and I knew my father would come along presently to inspect my work. I was trying to get old Dun to go out to the end so I could make a good job, but he would start turning 50 feet before he got to the end of the furrow. What was a fellow to do with an ox like that? I was too little to handle him, and he didn't have any principles."

"I shall never forget the time my father hitched Red and Dun to a big wagon and took me up with him and we drove 100 miles to the nearest sawmill to buy some lumber to build our first framed house. We were nearly back home from that long journey with the heavy load when we had to cross a stream with sand ruts leading up the hill. My father got out and talked to Red. He said: 'Red, we're nearly home. I know you're tired. You've had to pull most of the load most of the way. You're going to have to pull this load and Dun, too, up this last, long hill, but Red, do your best, old friend.'

"And then my father told me to cut a brush and work on Dun—that it wouldn't do much good but it would let Red know we were at least making a protest at the way Dun was acting. I saw old Red pull that day till his big hind legs were buried in that sand up to his body, but he never let that wagon stop till the load was at the top of the hill. And then he stood with his legs apart and panted like his heart would burst out of his body. He was faithful—faithful to the end. Dun stood there and sulked. Poor old miserable Dun. I find that there are two kinds of men—men like Red and men like Dun."

250-CITIZEN 'T-MEN' TO REPORT TRAFFIC VIOLATIONS URGED

Malcom Recommends Parking Meters, Compulsory Brake Inspection.

Numerous recommendations for the improvement of traffic conditions in Atlanta will be made to the police committee next week by Captain Jack Malcom, head of the traffic squad, who has just returned from a 2,200-mile inspection tour of southern cities.

Captain Malcom will advocate:

1. Appointment of 250 citizens as "T-men," to make secret reports of traffic violations.

2. Elimination of right-hand turns on red lights.

3. Making Peachtree and Whitehall streets one-way for north-bound traffic and Forsyth street one way for south-bound traffic.

4. Establishment of parking meters in the downtown area.

5. Compulsory inspection of brakes twice yearly.

6. Appointment of a traffic engineer from the personnel of the traffic department.

7. Judicious elimination of left-hand turns at intersections carrying heavy traffic.

8. Better street markings and "channelization" of traffic.

"T-men are used in Dallas, Texas, to great advantage in securing public co-operation in the drive to lower traffic deaths," Malcom asserted.

"I am going to recommend that some prominent citizen be named to appoint about 200 or 250 T-men for Atlanta. They would be supplied with post cards addressed to the police department and whenever these 'secret violation reporters' see a traffic violation they would take the license number of the offending car and mark the violation made."

Write to Offenders.

The card would be dropped in the nearest mailbox. Next day, the police would write that violator a letter asking his co-operation.

The second violation reported on this offender would bring a stronger letter and the third would mean a policeman would come to see him to appeal for co-operation. No cases would be made from the reports of the T-men, but the offender's record would show them when they finally do get in court.

"The people in Dallas are co-operating in this sort of plan," he said.

Parking meters are also in use in Dallas, the captain said.

"I believe the merchants and residents of Atlanta would like the meters if they tried them. All the money received from them would be used in traffic safety work."

Malcom pointed out that traffic is heavier here in the fall and winter and urged that something be done before the autumn to help keep down traffic deaths.

One way traffic for Peachtree and Whitehall and Forsyth street would do a great deal, he believes, in lessening the traffic problem downtown.

No other big cities have right turns on red lights now, he said. "They should be eliminated here."

Captain Malcom asserted that proper street markings would "tell the motorist what to do and would keep him from doing the wrong things and getting arrested."

Casual Meeting

Of Artist, Actor

Ends in Wedding

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 3.—(UP)—A casual meeting five years ago when Scott Colton sat for a portrait for Azadia Newman culminated in marriage today when the couple eloped to Phoenix, Ariz.

The actor and artist were married at the airport altar, replica of a Spanish monastery altar, in the presence of friends.

The bride is one of America's best-known young portrait artists. She is the daughter of the late Edwin A. Newman, one-time chairman of the Democratic National Committee and close friend of Woodrow Wilson. Her mother was Artemesia Shoemaker, also an artist. Her ancestors once owned most of what is now the District of Columbia. She came to Hollywood some 18 months ago to do portraits of such stars as Carole Lombard, Joan Crawford, Walter Huston, and Gladys Swarthout.

Boy Travels 4,000 Miles From England to Visit Atlanta

Finds the Bath (or Pool) 'Beastly Hot' After Welcome by Parents.

By AL HAILEY.

A 12-year-old boy who calls Atlanta his home saw the city for the first time yesterday.

For the past two years the boy has been attending school in England, only a few miles from the English home of Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh. But it was not until he stepped from a train here yesterday that he found it out.

The boy is Charlie Graham, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Graham, of 88 Brighton road, and jolly well British to the bone.

He arrived in Atlanta from New York, where he disembarked Monday after a 4,000-mile trip from England.

"He's been attending the New Beacon school at Seven Oaks in Kent," his father, a former British army cavalry captain, explained. "That's where Colonel Lindbergh has been living."

"Heard something" of Lindbergh. Charlie, appearing a bit nonplussed, said he didn't know that but added, "I believe I did hear something about a Lindbergh."

"You see the attention he gets over there," Charlie's father said. Charlie, speaking in a "most decidedly" British accent, but without the "don't you know" effects, said he had a "jolly good time" on the trip alone across the Atlantic.

An hour after he detrained here he was on his way to the swimming pool—or, as he calls it, "the bath"—near his home.

He commented that the water was "beastly hot," his father explaining that the water in England seldom registers a temperature above 60 degrees.

At New Beacon, Charlie is a member of the varsity cricket team. He also plays "rugger," slang for the forerunner of American football, Rugby.

May Go to Tech.

In another year, Charlie will go to Harrow, equivalent to American junior colleges, which his father and grandfathers for several generations have attended. And if Charlie's father is still in Atlanta then, he'll go to Georgia Tech.

Although born in Birmingham, Ala., Charlie is still a British subject. Traces of the drawl he might have picked up in New Orleans while living in Louisiana have disappeared entirely.

His father and mother came from Castle Size at Salins, county Kildare, in England, where his grandparents now live. Charlie is spending the two-month summer vacation with his parents here before returning next fall to finish school at Kent. They have lived in Atlanta the past year and a half.

LEGISLATURE SEEKS EARLE EVIDENCE

Case Back Where It Started

—Before County Judge.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Aug. 3.—(AP)—A new duel between the Democratic strength in Pennsylvania's legislature and the courts today for the right to investigate charges against Governor Earle and 13 associates put the entire case back where it started three months ago—before a county judge for a decision.

The crux of today's court fight was the constitutionality of laws passed by a special session of the general assembly to suspend a projected grand jury inquiry and allow a legislative committee to investigate "openly."

"If the laws are constitutional, certainly the grand jury investigation will be suspended," said Judge Schaeffer, assigned by the supreme court to supervise the court inquiry. It is scheduled to start next Monday.

The judge refused today to rescind an order impounding evidence collected for the grand jury investigation and prohibiting District Attorney Shelley and other witnesses from testifying about it before the legislators.

'BLUE' ARMY FORCES GET JUMP ON ENEMY

Defending Troops in Army Games Drives Cavalry Back.

THIRD ARMY HEADQUARTERS, DE SOTO NATIONAL FOREST, Miss., Aug. 3.—(AP)—The defending force in the realistic war games being held in south Mississippi actually got the jump in the first day's offensive.

The "blue" army received "go-ahead" orders at 12:15 a. m. and its cavalry pushed forward to a clear-cut tactical victory.

The "brown" cavalry, although forced to drop back from the banks of Red creek, didn't get underway until 6 a. m.

The "brown" force outnumbered the "blue" corps with their strength estimated at 16,000 and 9,000 respectively.

RUNCIMAN URGES BALKAN PATIENCE

Tells Newsmen of Efforts to Prevent Explosion.

PRAHA, Aug. 3.—(AP)—Viscount Runciman, Great Britain's unofficial adviser and mediator, tonight counseled patience in attempts to reconcile differences between the Czechoslovak government and the nation's 3,500,000 Sudeten Germans.

In a brief address to 200 newsmen he indicated his friendly private attempt to prevent an explosion in Czechoslovakia—an effort which had the unofficial sympathy of the British government—would not be a hurry-up job of statesmanship.

Charlie Graham, diving champ at school in Kent, England, in swimming an hour after he arrived in Atlanta from England. He was snapped as he climbed from the pool to explain how he tried to organize a baseball team but the British headmaster squelched it by calling it a "dud game."

MEDIATION BOARD GETS RAIL DISPUTE

National Body To Consider Proposed Wage Cut of Trainmen.

CHICAGO, Aug. 3.—(AP)—Hopelessly deadlocked, representatives of management of Class 1 railroads and the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen agreed today to refer consideration of a proposed 15 per cent salary cut for railroad workers to the National Mediation Board.

The decision followed a conference between the carriers' joint conference committee headed by H. A. Enoch and officials of the brotherhood, which is headed by A. F. Whitney. The conferences started July 18.

Enoch's group has a conference scheduled for tomorrow with George M. Harrison, chairman of the Railway Labor Executives' Association. Conferees expressed the opinion a mediator would be asked to intervene in this dispute also.

In disclosing that mediation, a step provided in the railway labor act before any strike could be called, had been agreed on, Enoch said:

"We have asked the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen to join with us in requesting the services of the National Mediation Board. We have shown members of the brotherhood that wage rates are the highest in history, while the railroads are facing disaster."

Whitney confirmed that the brotherhood had agreed to the step. "We were not convinced until today that these conferences wouldn't get us any closer together."

GOVERNOR ORDERS MAYTAG TO RE-OPEN

Martial Law Invoked When CIO Refuses Work Under Wage Cut.

DES MOINES, Aug. 3.—(AP)—Governor Nelson G. Karschel, of Iowa, tonight ordered the strike-bound Maytag washing machine factory of Newton, Iowa, to be opened at noon tomorrow under martial law after the CIO Maytag local union had refused a proposal to return to work under a 10 per cent wage cut.

The Governor also announced that his order to "close the Labor Relations Board hearing in the military district of Iowa shall from this date on be confined to Jasper county alone."

The Governor's order disposes of all possible question of the labor board's right to continue its unfair labor practices hearing against the company in the federal courthouse here.

The hearing is scheduled to be resumed tomorrow.

Ever Wonder Why You're Constipated?

Do you ever have days when you just have to drag yourself along, when you feel tired, sunk—because of that constipation? Then why not find out the real cause of your trouble?

What have you had to eat lately? Just things like meat, bread and potatoes? If that's it, you may not have to look any farther. It's likely your trouble is you don't get enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean a lot of food. It means a kind of food that isn't consumed in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines and aids elimination.

If "bulk" is what you lack, your ticket is a dish of crisp crunchy Kellogg's All-Bran for breakfast every day. It contains the "bulk" you need plus Nature's great intestinal tonic, vitamin E.

Eat it every day, drink plenty of water, and join the "regulars." Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Water Spider Kills Goldfish in Pool

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Aug. 3.—(AP)—Duplicating the recent achievement of its land-lubber cousin in subduing a garter snake, a water spider identified as belonging to the wolf variety, has caught and killed a three-inch gold fish in a pool here.

Mrs. H. W. Bryan discovered the marauder of her garden pool and his victim when she went to remove a lily.

When first discovered, witnesses said, the web-weaver and his prey the fish was still alive. How the spider managed to catch the fish is a matter of conjecture.

Keys Are 'Out'; Simone Simon Ees Gone--Pool!

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—(UP)—Simone Simon, keeper of the golden keys, pouted out of the U. S. A. today aboard the liner Normandie, tossing her head indignantly at the importunities of autograph hunters, reporters and a revenue officer, who was deeply concerned about a $4,000 income tax she said she had paid.

The French actress announced in a brief farewell speech to the press that she was "all done through, feeneeshed" with Twentieth Century-Fox, confirmed by the recent failure of Twentieth Century-Fox to renew her contract.

"I may nevaire come back to the United States," she said darkly.

Foreign Jews Barred by Italy From Attending Fascist Schools

ROME, Aug. 3.—(P)—The Italian government today announced the first of anti-Jewish measures foreshadowed by the recently promulgated Fascist doctrine which holds that Italy's 47,000 Jews "do not belong to the Italian race."

The order barred foreign Jews from Italian schools—a measure of limited scope since it does not affect Italian Jews, and the number of foreign Jews normally attending Italian schools is not large.

Foreigners attending Italian schools in 1936-37 totaled 2,612 but the proportion of Jews was not known.

Nevertheless, Italian Jews considered the regulation symptomatic since it disclosed that the racial campaign already had passed from the academic to the practical stage. Other more stringent regulations were expected to follow.

According to creditable sources, a comprehensive law governing the activities of Italian Jews was being formulated and the Fascist Grand Council was expected to act on it October 1.

The restrictive measures probably will be effected gradually so as not to outdistance popular opinion which every Fascist propaganda agency is striving to cultivate in line with the new racial theory.

Lost: 28 Miles Of Fulton Roads

State and county officials were perplexed yesterday as to the location of 28 miles of newly acquired highway in Fulton county.

The new road is supposed to be State Route 41, which actually originates below Newnan and extends southward to Randolph county.

The new mileage gives Fulton a total of 137 miles but officials of the highway department and county couldn't locate it all.

Highway Commissioner Herman H. Watson said the mileage probably was that added in the Ben Hill area of the county last year and had just been designated improperly.

Swift Transfer of Quota Tax Suits To Federal Courts Seems Assured

Conference of Attorneys at Valdosta Strives To Head Attack on Tobacco Regulations to Supreme Court for Quick Decision.

VALDOSTA, Ga., Aug. 3.—(P)—Swift transfer to federal district court of suits filed by tobacco growers challenging constitutionality of federal marketing quotas appeared assured tonight after a conference of attorneys representing producers, warehousemen and the federal government.

O. W. Franklin, attorney for several warehousemen who were named defendants in suits brought in state courts at Moultrie, Hazlehurst, Waycross and Valdosta, announced his intention of taking the case to federal court.

Counsel for the growers indicated they would not oppose the transfer, which had been urged by government attorneys as a step toward speedy appeal to the United States supreme court.

Cite Recent Law.

The federal attorneys, representing the agriculture and the justice departments, cited a recent law which permits direct appeal to the high tribunal from district courts on questions involving constitutionality of a federal statute.

Franklin said he had advised his clients to seek the transfer to avoid possibility of later litigation on the part of the government. He emphasized, however, he did not represent all defendant warehousemen and spoke only for his clients.

A. J. Little, J. L. Blackwell, C. A. Avriett and Hoyt H. Wheelchel, counsel for the producers, said they had initiated the suits in the state courts to protect the growers, and added they would agree to the transfer as a move to expedite a ruling on constitutionality of the quota question.

The government conferees included John S. L. Yost, assistant attorney general of the United States, and W. C. Hunter, chief attorney for the Department of Agriculture.

The case would be presented to a three-judge federal court, one of whom must be a member of the fifth circuit court of appeals.

Good Average Prices. Meanwhile, south Georgia's tobacco markets went ahead with sales for the fifth day of the new season. Prices generally maintained a good average.

The State Department of Agriculture issued its first official report on opening sales, showing that growers received $523,000 more during the first two days of 1938 auctions than in the same period last year.

The average price on the 15 markets increased 1.52 cents, to 26.75, while total sales for last Thursday and Friday amounted to $3,771,482.55. One Tifton warehouse was unreported.

Among market's reporting un-officially on today's sales were: Statesboro—350,000 pounds. Total received $87,500. Average 25. Range 5 to 33 cents.

Vidalia—647,000 pounds. Total $136,000. Average 21. Range 11 to 36 cents.

Baxley—325,000 pounds. Total $86,450. Average 25.60. Range five to 36 cents.

Hahira—333,104 pounds. Total $85,590.89. Average 25. Range 9 to 36 cents.

TRAFFIC FATALITY

MARS 35-DAY MARK

Bill J. Ross, 22, Dies of Hurts Sustained in Crash Tuesday.

The first traffic fatality in 35 days, and the 29th motor death since the first of the year, was recorded yesterday when Bill J. Ross, 22, of 1041 Hemphill avenue, N. W., died of injuries suffered Tuesday in a head-on collision between a street car and an automobile.

Ross suffered a fractured skull. He was driving a 1936 model automobile which skidded into the street car on Simpson street, between Griffin and Chestnut streets.

Three others in the automobile also were injured.

Of these, the most seriously injured was Mrs. Leo Thacker, 29, of 947 Marietta street, who suffered severe lacerations of the face, head and body. Her condition yesterday was reported at Grady hospital as fair.

After a lull in automobile accidents which made traffic officials jubilant, "old man average" was busy yesterday. Besides the death of Ross, there were 18 accidents, requiring hospital treatment for 10 persons.

Ross is survived by his wife; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Ross; five sisters, Mrs. O. L. Brannon, Mrs. Lucius Hildebrand, Mrs. Mary McGuire, Mrs. Allie Wilder and Miss Cuba Belle Ross.

Final rites will be held at 11:30 o'clock this morning at Spring Hill.

Final Rites Today. Three Hurt Last Night. Traffic accidents last night caused serious injury to three persons. Mrs. Rosalie Chaplin, of Macon, suffered a fractured skull and was admitted to Georgia Baptist hospital after the car in which she was riding collided with another at Linwood and North avenues.

Mrs. Hazel Atkinson, 37, of Baxley, Ga., driver of the car in which Mrs. Chaplin was riding, was charged with reckless driving and accident. Police reported she was proceeding north on Linwood avenue when she struck a car driven by L. Glenn Dewberry, 35, of 1911 Bixby street, S. E., who was going east on North avenue.

Rail Employee Hurt. Dewberry suffered injuries to the left arm and left knee. He was treated by a private physician.

W. E. Orr Jr., 30, of 211 Central avenue, employee of the N. C. & St. L. railroad, sustained a broken left arm and severe face and body lacerations when he was hurled from his motorcycle at Hunter and Spring streets. He was admitted in poor condition, to Georgia Baptist hospital.

The name of the driver of the automobile, whose wheel Orr struck, was not learned. Witnesses said Orr was tossed over another automobile. He told hospital attaches, however, he "didn't know what happened." Doctors said an amputation may be necessary.

Water Pageant Opens Tonight At Mozley Park

Weather permitting, the WPA recreation service in conjunction with the Atlanta parks department and the American Red Cross will present an elaborate water pageant, "Carnival of Venice," at Mozley Park at 8:15 o'clock tonight and tomorrow night.

Rehearsals were held yesterday and everything is in readiness, according to Eugene J. Bergmann, the program director.

Against a background depicting the famous Grand Canal of Venice, a colorful program of pageantry, aquatic drills and music will be presented. Swimmers from the life-saving and first aid division of the American Red Cross will participate and give exhibitions, augmenting a playlet in which a cast of more than 400 will take part. Music will be furnished by the WPA orchestra under the direction of Walter Sheets.

Taking leading parts will be Miss Mary Anne Linane, Joe Cotten, Lois Addington, Louise Deagan, Grace Nelson, Julia Bell, Claudell Yates, Virginia Jenkins, Charles Brawner and Walter Bartlett supported by hundreds of boys and girls recruited from supervised playgrounds of the city.

INDUSTRIAL TREND IN SOUTH IS CITED

National Geographic Society Compiles Statistical Bulletin on 13 States.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3.—(P)—The National Geographic Society noted today a noticeable trend toward industrialization of the farming south.

In a statistical bulletin on the 13 states which President Roosevelt described as the nation's "No. 1 economic problem," the society said manufactured products in Texas already exceeded farm products in value.

"Cotton mills in the south operate three times as many spindles as New England factories," it said. "The south has few tobacco factories, but they are large, and the region turns out over 80 per cent of the cigars and cigarettes."

Agriculture Leads.

Although agriculture still is the south's biggest business, the bulletin declared, there are many other sources of income—forests, fisheries, petroleum, helium, sulphur and zinc.

"Commerce, booming along the gulf, has given southern ports a larger share of export shipping than to any other American harbors except New York's," the society said. "Houston, since the completion of its ship canal, has outdistanced Galveston as leading cotton port of the world. Oil is co-starred with cotton as an export of gulf ports."

"New Orleans, with its steady flow of river traffic on the Mississippi and the volume of foreign shipping coming to its miles of docks, is one of the half dozen busiest ports in the United States."

The bulletin cited a long list of statistics on southern states:

With a fourth of the country's land, the south produces 93 per cent of the nation's cotton, 90 per cent of the tobacco, 99 per cent of the peanuts, 80 per cent of the rice, 95.7 per cent of the grapefruit, and 100 per cent of the sugarcane.

For the United States as a whole, 56 per cent of the people live in cities and towns. In the south, the urban population is only 33 per cent.

The south's per capita wealth is about 60 per cent of the national average.

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN

Of Tired Kidneys
If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.
The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acid and poisonous waste out of the blood. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste.
Frequent or steady passages with something and burning shows there may be something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.
If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headache and dizziness.
Don't wait. Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Funds for Film of City Activities Are Sought by Mayor Hartsfield

Business Firms Asked To Aid Project, Estimated To Cost $2,000; Additional Sum Requested for Purchase of Historical Marker.

Funds for making a motion picture of the activities of the city of Atlanta were being sought yesterday by Mayor Hartsfield.

The mayor had written to 100 prominent business firms in the city seeking aid in producing the picture, and yesterday he asked that any persons desiring to help with the movie send contributions to B. Graham West, city comptroller, who is acting as treasurer of the fund.

"This picture will be nonpolitical and will not advertise any person or company," said the mayor. "It will show Atlantans exactly what their government is and what it does."
The city of Detroit three years ago made such a film at the cost of $25,000 but Hartsfield said Atlanta's picture would cost only about $2,000.

He is appealing, however, for additional money with which to purchase permanent historical markers for the parks and with which to advertise the Cyclorama.

The city's charter prevents it from appropriating funds for these purposes. Council, however, has adopted a resolution approving the mayor's idea.

"The movie would be used in the schools and shown in Atlanta theaters," said Hartsfield. "It would be reduced to a small size for portable projectors so it could be shown in other cities to attract conventions and industries to this city."

Hartsfield asserted the film would reveal "the inside operation" of the police, fire, water, parks and other departments.

Tornadoes, high winds and hail storms caused more than $2,500,000 damage in Kansas during June, 1938, S. D. Flora, federal meteorologist, estimates.

COURT MAY BAR DEWEY'S EVIDENCE

Case Against Hines, Tammanyite, Jeopardized by New Order.

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—(P)—Counsel for James J. Hines, the erstwhile powerful Tammany boss accused of participating in a vast policy racket conspiracy, obtained a court order late today putting much of the prosecution's case in jeopardy.

Upon motion of Lloyd Paul Stryker, Hines' lawyer, Justice Percora directed District Attorney Dewey to show cause tomorrow why evidence based on the long bill of particulars he filed yesterday should not be barred.

That bill charged, among other things, that accused policy conspirators not specifically identified "intimidated, influenced or bribed" public officials, including former Tammany District Attorney William C. Dodge, City Magistrate, Hulan Capshaw and the late City Magistrate Francis Erwin. Stryker contended this specification was "indefinite, vague" and full of "generalities," as were others, and thus that all should be thrown out because they had not set forth the "specific facts" which the court had directed that the bill must contain.

Meanwhile, Dodge denounced Dewey today as a character assassin motivated by "political aspirations." He denied "most emphatically" any improper act in his 20 years of public office.

Magistrate Capshaw, socially prominent, already had entered a denial of the Dewey accusations. The case is set for August 30.

SYLVANIA SEEKS PWA SEWER FUNDS

Three Projects Submitted for Authorizations.

Three additional applications for Public Works Administration projects in Georgia were received yesterday at southeastern regional office, H. T. Cole, regional PWA administrator, announced.

Sylvania submitted plans for new sewer mains and disposal plants to cost $38,000 and asked for $18,500 in PWA aid. Plans school additions and repairs were submitted by Bishop and Unity school districts, the former asking $8,190 for work estimated to cost $18,200, while the Unity district asked $9,000 to construct school buildings at a cost of $20,000.

The city of Alpharetta will apply for a $12,870 PWA grant this morning, J. T. Upshaw, mayor, said last night. The grant to cover 45 per cent of the cost of building city waterworks. The town vote is $15,735, bonds issue to cover remainder of cost on September 4, the mayor said.

J. H. Hallman, of Route 8, Atlanta, was in "good condition" last night, attaches said.

"In fair condition" after an operation yesterday at Georgia Baptist hospital, was Mrs. Louise Folds, of 743 Myrtle street, N. E.

B. Graham West, city comptroller, was reported to be in "improved condition" yesterday in Crawford W. Long hospital. He underwent an operation there Tuesday.

Judge, Himself, Put on Hot Seat-- And by D-degrees

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—(P)—It was awfully hot in New York today when Magistrate Frank Giorgio took the bench. The room registered 90 degrees.

The place was crowded and pretty soon it got hotter—106 degrees, in fact.

Chief Clerk Abraham Marker noticed it, too.

Finally, the magistrate halted a case, saying: "Find out what makes this place so hot."

In the basement, Marker found a group of workmen stoking a roaring fire under a boiler they were installing. They had forgotten to turn off the heat registers in the courtroom.

Take a look at the tire that SCOOPS them all!

YOU bet it's a thrill to have this stalwart handsome new 1938 edition of the famous Goodyear "G-3" All-Weather on your wheels.

Think of the "lift" in having all that thick, tough, springy rubber under you... smoothing out the miles... soaking up the bumps... banishing tire worries.

But the biggest kick of all is the feeling of priceless security you get from the matchless non-skid safety of its All-Weather CENTER-TRACTION tread!

For over a quarter of a century tire makers have been trying to duplicate the All-Weather's positive safety—its road-holding, sure-braking, quick-stopping traction on any road surface.

But the All-Weather is still boss of 'em all as evidenced by the fact that it outsells any other tire in the world—and has for 23 consecutive years!

Now—to meet 1938 motoring needs—this basically correct design has been stepped up in a new 1938 edition that gives you more of everything.

Now—the tread is wider and flatter—to give more road contact, greater gripping area.

Now—there are more of those sturdy diamonds, nested closer together. That means more "bite," more "hold" when you step on the brakes—more "get up and go" when you step on the gas!

Now—even the rubber itself is tougher—an exclusive new Goodyear compound that wears like iron under the grindstone action of high speeds on modern roads.

Last, but not least, this great tire costs no more than others—so why not give yourself the treat of riding on the finest tire money can buy!

HERE'S THE GREAT 1938 EDITION "G3" ALL-WEATHER BUILT FOR 1938 DRIVING NEEDS WITH

- CENTER TRACTION—more sharp-edged diamonds nested closer together provide maximum skid resistance in all directions—greatest stopping power—surest-footed traction.
- WIDER TREAD—gives extra road contact; insures slower, more even wear.
- SUPER-TOUGH RUBBER—an exclusive new Goodyear compound that resists the grinding action of high-speed travel, increasing mileage.
- MAXIMUM BLOWOUT AND BRUISE RESISTANCE—from patented Supertwist cord in every ply.
- PLUS HIGHEST QUALITY WORKMANSHIP that comes from Goodyear's priceless experience as the world's largest tire maker.

More people ride on Goodyear tires than on any other kind.

THIS INFALLIBLE SAFETY MEMBER COMPLETES THE MODERN TIRE

The only sure protection against dangerous accidents caused by blowouts is the GOODYEAR LIFE-GUARD—an invulnerable reserve tire that replaces the conventional inner tube inside your casing. When a blowout occurs the LifeGuard keeps enough air under you to carry the car to a safe normal stop without the slightest lurch or swerve.

CIO'S LEAGUE FAILS IN PURGE OF HOUSE

Congressmen on 'Black List' Are Uniformly Successful in Races.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3.—(P)—Labor's Nonpartisan League, headed by John L. Lewis of the CIO, has failed so far in its efforts to purge the house of representatives of legislators it opposes.

In primary elections to date, congressmen disapproved by the league have been uniformly successful in winning renomination.

On the other hand, however, house members who have given the league's approval have, with a few exceptions, been renominated also.

Generally speaking, it has been a case of the sitting congressman winning regardless of the league's position, but the exceptions to this formula have all been defeats for the league.

League's Black List.
Some weeks ago (after several state primaries already had been held) the league made public two lists of house members, a "Class A" grouping of congressmen whose

Pilot MacRoberts Gets License Back

Owen (One-Wheel) MacRoberts got his flying license back yesterday.

With a handshake and a smile, the license was restored by Roy Kelley, airline inspector.

This action closed the incident, MacRoberts said last night. Kelley charged the pilot landed a plane on one wheel. MacRoberts said he did so to test the landing gear.

records it approved, and a "Class D" group to whose renomination it was opposed. The latter has been called, by some, the league's "black list."

On the "Class A" were Representative Maverick, Democrat, Texas, who was defeated in the recent Texas primaries and Representative McFarlane who trailed in the voting, but is now involved in a run-off election. Also in this group were Representative Wearin, of Iowa, and Representative Hildebrandt, of South Dakota, who lost in efforts to obtain senate nominations.

Otherwise, those on the "Class A" list have won. They are Representatives Fries and Keller, Democrats, of Illinois; Eicher and Jacobsen, Democrats, of Iowa; Teigan, Johnson, Bernard and Buckler, Farmer-Laborites, of Minnesota; O'Connell, Democrat, of Montana; Massingale, Democrat, of Oklahoma; Bradley, Glade, Allen and Dunn, Democrats, of Pennsylvania; and Thomas and Lyndon Johnson, Democrats, of Texas.

Winners Listed.
The candidates opposed by the league who have been renominated are Representatives Steagall, Democrat, of Alabama; Kozlowski, Democrat, of Illinois; Lambertson, Republican, of Kansas; Brewster, Republican, of Maine; Knutson, Republican, of Minnesota; Clark and Doughton, Democrats, of North Carolina; Rogers, Democrat, of Oklahoma; Mott, Republican, of Oregon; Rich and Ditter, Republicans, of Pennsylvania; Dies, Sumners, Mansfield, Lanham, and West, Democrats, of Texas, and Bland and Smith, Democrats, of Virginia.

At league headquarters it was said today that no special campaign had been made against those whom it opposed and that in several cases there was no opposing candidate in the primary. This was true as well of some of the candidates of whom it approved.

menting" Works Progress Administration workers for votes.

Berry was appointed to the senate early last year by Governor Gordon Browning. He then was a confidant of President Roosevelt, had served as the President's industrial co-ordinator, and headed Labor's Non-Partisan League in the 1936 campaign.

But during the past 12 months Berry rapidly has lost favor with the New Deal. His marble claim against the TVA embarrassed President Roosevelt and was one of the main causes for the present congressional inquiry into TVA. He opposed the wages and hours bill and the lending-spending program, criticized TVA, and now is termed a "traitor" by New Dealers.

The campaign for the senate, however, has played second fiddle in the state to the torrid gubernatorial race.

The Crump machine is supporting Prentice Cooper, a state senator, for the gubernatorial nomination, and the paramount issue is Crump vs. Browning.

CLARK DECLARED PRESIDENTIAL TIMBER
WASHINGTON, Aug. 3.—(P)—Senator Bennett Champ Clark's overwhelming renomination in Tuesday's Democratic primary in Missouri prompted one of his senatorial colleagues to declare today that Clark is an outstanding possibility for President in 1940.

Senator Rush Holt, Democrat, West Virginia, described Clark's victory as a "great tribute to his independence of thought and action," and said it "put him in a position for important consideration for the Democratic presidential nomination" two years hence.

SENATOR RUSSELL BACK IN CAPITAL
Refuses To Comment on Politics of Georgia.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3.—Following a leisurely vacation trip through Caribbean and Panama waters on a government transport, Senator Richard B. Russell Jr., of Georgia, arrived in Washington today preparatory to assume his duties as a majority member of the newly created senate committee which was ordered by the last congress to investigate labor conditions in the merchant marine.

FRANK SEES REVOLT IN PRIMARY VOTES
Thinks New Deal Defeats Indicates Rebellion.

CHICAGO, Aug. 3.—(P)—Chairman Glenn Frank, of the Republican program committee, today professed to see indications of a "healthy American rebellion" in the defeat of several New Deal supporters in primary elections.

"The instances in which the Roosevelt purge have been stopped indicate a healthy American rebellion against the administration's persistent attempt to establish the European doctrine of 'the leader' here under the polite name of party discipline," he stated.

The Americanized version of the "leader" doctrine is simply the old American institution of the boss expanded to national scale and given a halo of idealism."

they did not want a genuine war with Russia.

(Russian officials yesterday said their army's operations were purely defensive, and there were indications she wants to reach a peaceful settlement. Nevertheless, mass meetings of workers and resolutions passed by Red army groups indicated the public was being prepared for a real emergency should the necessity of larger operations arise.)

"Fully Prepared."
Official circles declared Japan "is fully prepared if necessary" and repeated their stand that the course of the incident, most serious in a long series of border clashes, depended upon Russia. (Russia contends she is defending her territory and has not crossed the border.)

With the Changkufeng area recaptured, authoritative sources said, Japan would not advance further. Russia has contended that the sector is Soviet territory while Japan insists it is a part of Manchoukuo.

Concentrating Strength.
Advices reaching Tokyo said Soviet tanks and motor lorries rolled along the road between Novosivsk and Fashih through the day, apparently in a concentration of strength for an attempt to recapture Changkufeng and Schachofeng hills.

A Korean army communiqué said Soviet Russian artillerymen continued bombardment of the northern Korean town of Kojong from batteries across the Tumen river at Poshihung, Hsiangshantung and Manshan.

The weather retarded aerial operations yesterday along the disputed border but several hundred miles away, across the Japan sea, nightfall brought a contagious fear of bomb attacks.

Defense headquarters for the Japanese mainland issued orders darkening all outdoor lights in Tokyo, Yokohama, Kobe and Osaka and other cities and towns of eastern Japan.

On the Asiatic mainland, the government of Korea ordered a blackout and air defense measures throughout the northern area. Korean advices said residents of villages in and near the battle zone were evacuating.

MOSCOW INDICATES DESIRE FOR SETTLEMENT
MOSCOW, Aug. 3.—(P)—Russian officials declared today that the Soviet army's operations in clashes with Japanese on the Manchoukuo border were purely defensive, but the public was being prepared for the possibility of a great emergency.

There were indications that Russia wished to reach a peaceful settlement even though a government communiqué warned of possible "serious consequences" if Japanese "provocations" continued.

Moscow residents calmly went about their workday tasks as usual and the city showed no outward evidence of the crisis.

However, newspapers, which for several days had printed only the briefest mention of Japanese-Russian fighting near the junction of Korea, Siberia and Manchoukuo, where crowded with reports of patriotic mass meetings, resolutions and letters to the editors from groups and individuals promising loyalty to death in defense of the Soviet Fatherland's frontiers.

Publish Maps.
For the first time newspapers published detail maps showing the location of the fighting.

Both Pravda, Communist party newspaper, and Izvestia, government organ, carried photostatic copies of the Russian-Chinese treaty maps of June 26, 1936, showing the disputed Changkufeng heights as a part of Russian territory.

The army newspaper "Red Star" carried this banner headline: "We are keeping our dynamite dry." Sailors of the Baltic fleet sent a message to Moscow that "the fleet is ready to deliver a destructive blow to the enemy" and demanded "merciless punishment of the aggressors."

"Japanese Bandits."
Soldiers of the Moscow garrison—at present more than 4,000 miles from the Far Eastern front—voted a defiant resolution declaring, "Let the Japanese bandits remember that if they attack us they will break their head against granite walls of the Socialist fatherland. If the government calls us, we will race to the frontier and exterminate the fascist aggressors."

Meetings of factory workers warned any and all aggressors that the "whole people now as never before, is devoted to the armed forces of Socialism."

Soviet officials repeated their declarations that no Russian troops or planes had crossed the Manchoukuo or Korean borders and said Japanese militarists had circulated false reports to the contrary "in order to justify their repeated attacks on Soviet territory."

The Soviet government was pictured as having indicated willingness to remark the disputed boundary.

An indication that Russians were not forgetting Germany in their preoccupation with the Far East was seen in a resolution of workers of the southwestern Russian Kiev district which was prominently displayed in Izvestia.

"We know very well that Japanese imperialists are hand in glove with German fascists who dream of occupying the Ukraine," the resolution said in reference to German designs on the rich southwestern district.

"But they can only dream of it. The Ukrainian people as well as other peoples of our country will defend their land from west to east in all corners of the Soviet Union."

JAPANESE SHIFTING TROOPS FROM CHINA
PEIPING, Aug. 3.—(P)—Large-scale Japanese troop movements north through Manchoukuo and through Inner Mongolia toward Outer Mongolia, which is under Soviet protection, were reported today by travelers from Manchoukuo.

They said that there were as many as ten troop trains daily proceeding north through Mukden. Most of these soldiers were believed withdrawn from Shantung and Shansi provinces in China.

Considerable bodies of Japanese troops were entering Inner Mongolia through Kalgan, to the west, they said.

Major Candidates Address Voters In Series of Meetings Over State

George and Talmadge Advocate Adjustments of Federal Farm Regulations, While Camp Accuses Senator of Big Business Link and McRae Discusses Pensions.

Adjustments of federal farm regulations were advocated by Senator Walter F. George and Ex-Governor Eugene Talmadge yesterday while Lawrence S. Camp and William G. McRae stressed other phases of the Democratic senatorial campaign.

Gubernatorial candidates differed over state financial policies. "Any farm program," Senator George said in an address here, "ought to relate more and more to men, women and children instead of just to the land."

He said he "voted down the line" for the New Deal farm acts, "though I did my level best to correct the features that are now proving so burdensome upon our farmers."

Talmadge described George in an address at Sandersville as "the father of the reciprocal trade agreements."

"Thus," he said, "we see the sad spectacle of $79,000,000 worth of tobacco imported into the United States since 1936, and we are at the same time starving our own farmers by restricting their production of tobacco."

McRae declared at Fayetteville

the Townsend pension plan would solve economic problems. "Our greatest need is money in circulation," he said.

Camp asserted in an address at Hogsheadville that he "has fought the efforts of the administration to help the farmers when such efforts touched the senator's big business friends."

"They are not going to win this election," he said.

Camp was introduced by Hamilton Ralls, state markets director who Tuesday night delivered an address here attacking the farm and labor record of the senator.

Governor Rivers, whose official work of the day included dispatch of a telegram to Secretary Wallace protesting "discrimination" in peanut penalties, declared in a campaign address at Carrollton "we must not let this great (state) program be hamstrung by its enemies."

Hugh Howell, Atlanta attorney, declared in an address at Cutbert that the program was being "camouflaged and glorified to hide its terrible cost in taxes."

County maintenance of roads was recommended by John J. Mangham, Bremen businessman and farmer, at Colquitt in one of a series of four addresses.

"This would make it unnecessary," he said, for the state to buy machinery that simply duplicates machinery already purchased by counties.

Robert F. Wood, "against Roosevelt, Rivers and all their works," said he planned resumption of a sound truck tour.

BIG BUSINESS LINK CHARGED BY CAMP

HOGANSVILLE, Ga., Aug. 3.—(P)—Lawrence S. Camp declared in a senatorial campaign address today "all of those whose sole aim in life is to control this government and use its agencies to pro-

Roosevelt To Meet Farmers at Athens

ATHENS, Ga., Aug. 4.—(P)—Georgia's part-time farmer President Roosevelt will be greeted by thousands of farmers and their wives expected here August 8-12, the annual farm and home week at the State College of Agriculture.

The President is scheduled to visit the university and receive an honorary degree on Thursday, August 11. Farm and home week programs were left open for this date to permit visitors to attend the ceremony.

note big business at the expense of the masses" were supporting Senator Walter F. George.

Hamilton Ralls, Hogsheadville planter and director of the state farm markets system, introduced the district attorney.

In the campaign of 1936," said Camp, "the fight made on the Democratic party and President Roosevelt was led by the Liberty Leaguers, headed by Raskob and Dupont. The big Georgia bankers, the Georgia Power Company, the Republican newspapers and local agencies for big eastern-owned industries were solidly behind the candidacy of Governor Talmadge in that campaign. This year the same group is supporting Senator George for re-election. They still have President Roosevelt and are still trying to escape their equitable part of the burdens of government."

He reiterated a charge that Publisher Frank E. Gannett and Dr. Edward A. Rumley led a faction which "obtained the support of Senator George, of Georgia, on the floor of the senate, and induced him to leave the senate chamber and go on the radio to attempt to arouse public sentiment against President Roosevelt and the Democratic party."

"They are not going to win this election," he said.

TOWNSEND PLAN McRAE'S SUBJECT

FAYETTEVILLE, Ga., Aug. 3.—(P)—William G. McRae declared in a senatorial campaign speech here today "our greatest need is money in circulation," and recommended the Townsend pension plan revolving fund to keep it moving.

"The Townsend plan," said the Atlanta attorney, is a permanent pump-primer for real prosperity. The money will be distributed according to law instead of the discretion of politicians."

McRae declared "all businessmen will benefit, the idle will be re-employed and permanent prosperity will be made possible." He emphasized that the program is a "pay-as-you-go" plan.

FARM, RELIEF SUPPORT IS CITED BY GEORGE

Support of New Deal farm and relief legislation was cited by Senator Walter F. George here yesterday in a senatorial campaign speech by radio.

"Whether I agreed with it wholly or not," the veteran said, "whether I saw the defects in it or not, I voted down the line to the last act, though I did my level best to correct the features of the farm act that are now proving to be so burdensome upon our farmers."

Moreover, the senator said he had voted for every relief bill before congress since March, 1933.

"If we are to continue (farm) control measures," he declared, "we should write into the law the yardstick by which every farmer might know, not in March or April, but in October or November, how much cotton land he can plant, and he may now also be at liberty to be the best farmer he can and produce every pound he can produce and that he will be rewarded by the sale of his cotton without restriction whatever."

"I stood for the same principle so far as tobacco is concerned. Senator George reiterated the declaration he made at Albany yesterday that if relief was not given tobacco farmers this year he would introduce a bill at the start of the next congress to refund tax payments on leaf tobacco from allotted acreages."

He was introduced by J. A. Harper, Atlanta business executive and past president of the Atlanta Federation of Trades.

TALMADGE ATTACKS CROP RESTRICTIONS

MONTICELLO, Ga., Aug. 3.—(P)—Ex-Governor Eugene Talmadge hammered at crop quotas today in a senatorial campaign speech, criticizing curtailment of cotton, tobacco and wheat production.

Asserting American wheat farmers were allowed only enough wheat "to keep body and soul together," Talmadge charged the remainder of the market was left for "favored nations," and especially Russia.

"The tobacco market is the same way," he said. "They draw a circle and tell American tobacco growers to stay in that circle; outside that circle is reserved for the 'favored nations.' These foreigners can get in your market all right, but you get over in his and you will pay a stiff tariff."

Talmadge, who seeks to unseat Senator Walter F. George, asserted elimination of Indian jute from the American market would create demand for approximately 2,500,000 bales of United States cotton.

He said Senator George "will not make any frantic appeal to Secretary Wallace to relieve this penalty for you cotton farmers. The election will be over then."

RIVERS PLEADS FOR HIS PROGRAM

CARROLLTON, Ga., Aug. 3.—(P)—Governor Rivers declared in a gubernatorial campaign address today "we must not let the operation of this great (state) program be hamstrung by its enemies."

He cited social security benefits, the school, rural road and electrification aims of the administration.

"We are determined to keep up the fight," the Governor said, "until the program is completed."

He reported a primary aim was to give "all boys and girls in Georgia, whether a resident of city, town or country, an equal opportunity to improve their lot in life."

"We paid Carroll county $55,163.71 more for its schools in the current year than it received in 1936."

The Governor also cited savings to taxpayers under the homestead and household exemption acts and payment of the county $7,632.04 for general purposes "to make up the losses under tax exemptions."

HUGH HOWELL HITS ADMINISTRATION COST

CUTHBERT, Ga., Aug. 3.—(P)—Hugh Howell said today the Rivers administration program was being "camouflaged and glorified to hide its terrible cost in taxes."

The Atlanta attorney declared in a gubernatorial campaign speech the essentials could be carried out with 60 per cent of the money expended.

"We are about $7,000,000 in the hole now," Howell said, "although Ed started off with about $7,000,000 in cash in the treasury. . . . Georgia is going to wake up with a $15,000,000 headache if Arkansas Eddie should happen to fool Georgia people into returning him to office."

He spoke earlier at Leesburg.

COUNTY MAINTENANCE IS URGED FOR ROADS

COLQUITT, Ga., Aug. 3.—(P)—County maintenance of Georgia highways was recommended by John J. Mangham in a gubernatorial campaign address today to eliminate state purchases of "unnecessary road machinery."

The Bremen businessman and farmer said he advocated a plan whereby county governments "will take over the maintenance of roads that need maintenance and that they be paid by the state for this work."

"This would make it unnecessary for the state to buy machinery that simply duplicates machinery already purchased by counties."

He termed state purchases under the Rivers administration "scandalous."

The candidate had other addresses today at Newton, Leary and Arlington.

CANDIDATES PLEDGE EXPENSE REDUCTION

Fulton Legislative Aspirants Agree To Hold Expenditures to Minimum.

Because of the small remuneration received for their services if elected, Fulton county aspirants to the general assembly have adopted a resolution to hold down their campaign expenses to a minimum.

The resolution provides that no workers are to be employed at the polls. It follows:

WHEREAS, the office of a legislator carries a salary of $400 per session, AND, WHEREAS, the entry fee alone is $150.

AND, WHEREAS, the cost of campaigning is disproportionate to the salary received.

AND, WHEREAS, we consider that the main desire of all citizens is to secure good government and to disfavor excessive campaign expenditures.

NOW, THEREFORE, we the undersigned, being all of the candidates in the race for the house of representatives from Fulton county, subject to the Democratic white primary of September 14, 1938, enter into this agreement and we do pledge ourselves as follows:

1. That we will place advertisements only in such publications as are entered at the post office as second-class matter, excepting only such contracts as have already been placed and which are now listed with the candidates.

2. That we will have no paid or volunteer workers at any polling place in any precinct on election day.

3. That we will not participate in any form of co-operative advertising, including paid public forums or other speaking engagements where the candidates are required to pay for the privilege of speaking.

This the first day of August, 1938.

RURAL SCHOOLS OPEN IN WHITFIELD COUNTY

DALTON, Ga., Aug. 3.—Whitfield county rural schools began their annual summer terms this week with the largest enrollment in history and with prospects for an even larger registration during the next few days.

More than 3,000 students are enrolled, according to Fred C. Cooper, county school superintendent. Of this number, 2,534 are in grammar and 500 are enrolled in high school grades. Summer school will continue for two months, adjourning October 1 so students may assist in gathering crops.

The Cobb county project was one of four authorized by the state administrator for Georgia at a total cost of approximately $59,693.17, including $24,177.77 of sponsors' funds.

The other projects were improvements to water system at Ashburn, $16,078.27; improvements to buildings and grounds of county schools in Bleckley county, $11,472.10, and construction of an addition and remodeling of the jail at Waycross, $6,037.

Recent rains in Japan broke every mark in 60 years.

MALARIA DRAINAGE IN COBB APPROVED

$26,105.80 Is Authorized for Project.

Authorization of a county-wide malaria drainage control project in Cobb county at an estimated expenditure of $26,105.80 was announced yesterday by Miss Gay B. Shepperson, state WPA administrator. Work is scheduled to start when suitable labor is available from other projects or from relief rolls.

PALM BEACH SUITS

Palm Beach is entering a very useful month—August. For, after a glance at last year's temperature recordings from August 1st through Labor Day, you'll see many days high into the 90's. Days when it's so easy to have that sweltering "pre-fall" look . . . days that you'll really appreciate the cool, air-swept relief of a Palm Beach Suit.

And, too, Palm Beach suits are smart. Made by Summer wear specialists who achieve perfect fit—without burdensome pads or linings. Tailored in handsomely patterned blues, grays and browns for town wear—in the new Airtones for sports—and the smartest of whites for evening wear. Let a cool, Zachry-fitted Palm Beach be your answer today to the August heat-wave.

Bride-Elect Namesake of Grandmother Inherits Ancestral Flat Silver

King Edward Pattern To Grace Atlanta Bride-Elect's Table

By Sally Forth.

BECAUSE she bears the name of her maternal grandmother, Mary Russell, the bride-elect of the late William Russell, when she becomes Mrs. Russell, will grace the table at a wedding ceremony taking place in Pendleton, S. C. King Edward is the name of the discontinued pattern of the silver which was cast for King Edward VII.

The heavy pieces are embossed at the top with a shell design and two crowns adorn the center of the handles of the ornate silver. A shell and crown are intertwined at the bottom of the handle of each piece of the silver which will grace Mary Russell's table after she becomes Mrs. Russell.

The popular and admired bride-elect has received many beautiful wedding presents, the first and one of the most cherished, being the exquisite silver basket presented them by Mrs. Alex Smith Jr.

SALLY FORTH'S interesting story in Sunday's paper on Atlantans' pet names for grandparents brought to mind an incident which happened several years ago when Frances Stapleton was enrolled in kindergarten at Lucy Cobb Institute at Athens.

Miss Mildred Ruthenford was president of Lucy Cobb, and resided in her lovely old home known as The Villa, which was just across Milledge avenue from Lucy Cobb.

One day "Miss Millie" invited several of the kindergartners to visit with her for a little while at The Villa. Frances was among them, and she had the time of her life talking to Miss Millie and seeing inside her house.

Many times before she had waited with one of her teachers on the porch of The Villa to get out of the rain and had even had the thrill of sitting in one of the snake chairs, as she termed the porch furniture because it was made of bent twig and painted black. When Frances told her mother about her visit, she said: "Mama, Miss Millie asked me my grandfather's name."

"And what did you say?" asked Mama.

"Well, I knew she didn't mean Big Papa, 'cause he's your papa and he lives in Hartwell, so I thought she meant grandpa, 'cause he lives with us, and so I said, 'I think his name is Tom.'"

And Mama was humiliated that her five-year-old knew no better, so she called Miss Millie and informed her that her maternal grandfather was Drewry Gade Alford and her paternal grandfather was Thomas Jefferson Stapleton.

Frances also learned that "Mother" before she married "Big Papa" was Sara Frances Thornton, and that "Grandpa's" wife was Sophia Ann Span. A lot for a five-year-old to remember, but she did, and to this day Frances seems to remember more about "who was who" than the average young girl.

WHEN a certain Atlanta belle arrived home after a dance, she was radiant with excitement, and yearning to tell someone all about it. Naturally, she thought of "Mother."

Forgetting her trailing skirts, she bounded up the stairs like any young thing of five, and stopped—thunderstruck! Entering the hall to greet her was "Mother," blinking from sleep and frowning at the mouth. The daughter was just contemplating jumping down the stairs (to safety!) when she remembered. "Mother" was suffering from lip-stick poisoning, and the white paste on her lips was a doctor's prescription!

Mr. and Mrs. Howard C. Smith announce the birth of a son August 2 at Emory University hospital. Mrs. Smith is the former Miss Helen Coyne Riley, of Syracuse, N. Y.

Mrs. Charles T. Fitts, of Norcross, who, before her recent marriage to Mr. Fitts, was Miss Mary Gardner, of Norcross.

Interesting Program Will Open Adult Camp at Highland Saturday

Camp Highland, the Y. W. C. A. camp located in the foothills of the Blue Ridge mountains, 12 miles from Atlanta, opens Saturday morning with an interesting recreational program, at minimum cost, to all girls and women over 18 years of age. Prospective campers should first register at the Y. W. C. A., 37 Auburn avenue, before going to Camp Highland.

Miss Frances Keller, Y health education secretary, will direct the adult program and will be assisted by an able corps of counselors. Former campers will be delighted that Miss Lorraine Hesal road, of Webster Grove, Mo., returns to direct horseback riding and assist with swimming. Miss Emily Roberts, leader in the Bell Y Club, will serve as business manager and supervise hiking and games. Miss Julia White, of Business Girls' League, will again preside at the camp store. Camp pianist will be Miss Trudie Moore, who is well known among Y members as she played for health education classes during the past year.

Miss Mary Roberts, of Bell Y, will direct crafts, giving instruction in knitting, weaving, needle work, rug making, hand-painted novelties and other interesting hobbies. Mrs. Harry Glore, president of Leisure Time Club, will assist with planning menus and buying food. The title of "co-op" is eagerly coveted by girls who wish to earn their camp expenses by helping in the dining room, goes to the following this summer: Delores Johnson, Beverly Grantham, Coral Schmidt, Betty Gordon, Micky Leverette, Alma McMillan and Mrs. Thelma Dunton.

Among early registrants are: Misses Opale McKinney, Florence Fesperman, Mae Swords, Mary Jennings, Eleanor Plaxico, Virginia Potts, Betty Rives, Ruth Jones, Marie Cochran, June Scott, Mary Ragsdale, Leatrice Randie, Tupe, Miss Margaret Ruth, erford, Corinth, Miss Anna Brandon, Louise Ellis, Helen Carter, Nell Platt, Margaret Bryan, Arleen Metzger, Mary Bower, Mary Sargent, Catherine Lofton, Ann Porreca, Tommie Wells, Martha Fowler, Avis Hulse, Ophelia Hulse, Pauline Green, Smyrna; Anna Mulchry, Kate Cooley and Mesdames Jerry Hudson, Sarah Pugh, Evelyn Howard.

Matrons' Club. The 1938 Matrons O. E. S. Club will enjoy a spend-the-day party and covered dish luncheon on August 10 at the home of the president, Mrs. C. A. Baker. Members are urged to attend.

Techwood Club. Techwood Music Club, of which Mrs. James O. Dees is president, will sponsor a musical entertainment this evening in the auditorium at 462 Techwood drive.

Miss Mary Smith Will Be Honored At Party Series

Many delightful parties are being planned complimenting Miss Mary Seabrook Smith, whose marriage to Edgar Hutchinsor Johnson will be a social event of August 17 at Emory University chapel.

Among these is the tea at which Mrs. Harold White and Miss Betsey White entertain today at their home on Lakeview avenue. A limited number of friends of the hostess and honor guest will be present.

On August 9 Miss Eloise Hopkins will entertain in the afternoon at her home on Greenwood avenue, honoring Miss Smith, and on August 12 Mrs. Mark Pentecost and Miss Jean Pentecost will be hostesses at tea at their Pine Valley road home.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert McMichael will entertain members of the wedding party and immediate family at a buffet supper on August 14, at their home on Twenty-sixth street. On August 15 Miss Smith will be the central figure at the tea to be given by Mrs. Millard Lewis, at her home at Emory.

Misses Anne Griffin, of Macon, and Elizabeth Mosely, of Union Springs, Ala., will honor Miss Smith on August 16 at a luncheon to be given at Davison's tea room.

On August 16, following the wedding rehearsal, Miss Smith and Mr. Johnson will be central figures at the party at which Dr. and Mrs. Edgar Johnson will be hosts at their home on Clifton road. Others who will give parties for Miss Smith, the dates to be announced later, are Mesdames Virginia Burns, Olive Bell Davis, Jacqueline Howard and Mrs. Malcolm Dewey.

Woman's Club Board To Meet Tomorrow

The executive board of the Atlanta Woman's Club meets tomorrow at 12 o'clock with Mrs. Frederick C. Rice, chairman, presiding. Mrs. Alva G. Maxwell, president, requests chairmen of committees to be present as important resolutions concerning public recreation, health, and journalism will be considered.

Mrs. John MacDougald who attended the recent club institute at Athens will report on this institute and present plans for one to be held at the club in the early fall.

A social event of August 17 will be the garden party at which the club will entertain, honoring the 100 life members.

LaGrange Auxiliary To Present Revue.

LAGRANGE, Ga., Aug. 3.—Rehearsals are under way for the musical revue, "Sweethearts on Parade," to be presented by the American Legion Auxiliary on Friday evening. The revue will be held in the LaGrange High school auditorium, the proceeds to go to the welfare work of the auxiliary.

More than a hundred members will compose the cast, which will include a drum and bugle corps of 60 boys, talented musicians, singers, dancers and comedians. Many novel and unusual features will be introduced.

The revue is being staged by Miss Mildred Fike, assisted by the president, Mrs. Albert Brooks, and Mesdames R. M. Young, R. A. Jones, C. W. Sutherland, L. W. Handley, John Guinn Young, J. E. Matthews, N. C. Johnston, V. Hillers and Miss Ruth Sutherland.

Habersham Board.

Executive board of Joseph Habersham chapter, D. A. R., meets today at 10 o'clock in the chapter house, 270 Fifteenth street. Mrs. W. P. Dunn, chairman of the board, will preside.

Nurses Will Meet.

The private duty section of the Fifth District of Georgia State Nurses' Association meets today at 3:30 o'clock in Parlor A of the Henry Grady hotel. Private duty nurses are urged to attend.

Family Reunion.

Members of the Crisler family will assemble on August 21 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Horner Morris at Chamblee, Ga., for the annual family reunion. An old-fashioned basket luncheon will be served promptly at 12:30 o'clock.

'Hot Weather Is a Good Time to Reduce,' Says Ida Jean Kain

Life Is Not Perennial Picnic

By Caroline Chatfield.

The economists continue to write magazine articles showing that it's cheaper for a young couple to rent than to own a home, all of which is probably true measured in dollars and cents, but I wonder if that's the whole story?

The average young couple altar-bound believes that life is going to be a perennial picnic, with the basket packed, the car filled with gas and the two of them ready to play. Up to this time life has been a continuous round of pleasure, all bills footed by fond parents. They get married and soon discover that life isn't built on this plan.

If they start out buying a home they come down out of the clouds gently for the home gives them something to work with and work for. This settles them, sobers them, awakens their pride in possession and ambition to take their place in the community. They are anchored as they cannot be in a rented house or a boarding house.

They quickly learn the value of a dollar when there are payments on the house to be met, calls for taxes, insurance, renovations and improvements; all sure to come. They discover that working, saving, sacrificing are necessary if they are going to lift the mortgage, get on in the world and get on with one another.

The home furnishes a wholesome outlet for their energies.
Give a young bride a little money, a market basket, a kitchen with a few utensils and mixing bowls, a cupboard filled with bright china, a few yards of chintz and she's off to a good start. The young husband with a workshop to tinker in, a lawn to mow, and household gadgets to mend, finds his hobbies ready-made. This pair isn't dependent upon gadding every night to find excitement and amusement.
They have it at home.

Building the nest is a romantic adventure in which they are lovers. It's a business venture in which they are partners. It will one day be a place for the cradle, later a clubhouse for the children and their friends. Eventually it will be the old home where children and grandchildren love to gather.

So I stoutly maintain that a home is not only a fine investment for a young couple which yields them big dividends of happiness and contentment but it's also an insurance policy to protect their marriage and give it permanence.

Barbara Bell Designs Your Fall Frock

Make yourself a really new dress, designed in the spirit of the coming mode! Have it ready for the very first day when a tingle in the air assures you that fall is here! And make it just like this design (1573-B).
It has the bodice detailing, used to give a well-defined bustline, which heads the list of new fashion detail from Paris, and very flattering it is, too, for those in the 12 to 20 size range. Smooth shoulders, high-at-the-top sleeves, smooth hips, high neckline, skirt with just a touch of animation, everything about it has the essence of fall chic! It's a perfect style for the short-sleeved wool that every smart woman will wear this fall. This dress will be pretty in so many materials—silk crepe, rayon jersey, sheer wool and satin.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1573-B is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Corresponding bust measurements 30, 32, 34, 36 and 38. Size 14 (32) requires 4 3/8 yards of 39-inch material for short sleeves; 4 3/4 with long.
Price of pattern 15 cents. Do

Light Luncheon May Contain Unexpected Number Calories

By Ida Jean Kain.

When the hot weather came along and took away your appetite you expected to lose weight, and to your chagrin you may find the scales just where they were, or even up a bit. The trouble with your weight is that you exert yourself as little as possible because of the weather, and you get many more calories than you imagine in spite of it.

It is astonishingly easy to get 1,000 calories in which you might suppose was a "light" luncheon—nothing but a salad, buttered rolls, a sweetened beverage and ice cream. The essentials in that meal are not high in calories, but the trimming, the mayonnaise, butter, cream and sugar, contain several hundred calories you may not have counted on.

One pat of butter contains 100 calories, one level tablespoon of butter another 100, and sweet drinks contain at least 100 calories per glass, while the cream and sugar on summer fruits and berries add innumerable calories to the day's menu. When you really begin figuring you can see that it would be easy to get the 1,000 calories a day in trimmings alone, especially if the rest of your meals are anything like that supposedly light luncheon. A much more slimming luncheon menu would contain the same essentials, but with a great difference in the trimmings. You would take Re-ducer's Mayonnaise on the salad, crackers instead of rolls and fruit instead of ice cream.

This rule of taking fruit, without sugar or cream, for dessert is one that will really help you in your plans to lose weight during the hot weather. Desserts usually add from 300 to 500 calories to the meal, but you could not possibly get more than 100 calories in any one of the following: Cantalupe, honeydew melon, watermelon, fruit ice or fresh fruits of any kind—so long as you leave off the cream and sugar.

Another rule you may have let slip your mind, and which is important to your weight reduction, is the one about taking liquids with meals. Two glasses of iced tea with your luncheon is just one too many. Nor should you drink large quantities of water just before or just after eating.

Taken with food all liquid has a tendency to remain longer in the stomach and to stretch that organ.
You should, of course, take plenty of liquid between meals.
It is even a good idea to have a glass of fruit juice in the mid-afternoon to prevent the feeling of depression which occurs more often in the hot weather.

You do eat less in the summer, and if you will be consistent in watching the small accessories to the meal and in observing the dietary rules, you can still lose 10 pounds between now and Labor Day—and without too much deprivation.

STRIKING DINNER DRESS—Hedy Lamarr displays an Irene dinner dress of shimmer black taffeta. Seven rows of velvet banding trim the lower part of the skirt, while a lacy mantilla adds a charming touch to the shoulders. A diamond and sapphire clip adorns the V-neck, and drop earrings and bracelets complete the jewelry ensemble.

Hollywood Correspondent Describes Fashion Parade

By Sheila Graham.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal. — Hedy Lamarr, exotic Viennese beauty, makes her American debut in Walter Wanger's "Algiers," starring Charles Boyer, and will be all dressed up for the occasion in a striking Irene dinner dress of shimmer black taffeta. The lower part of the skirt is trimmed with seven rows of black velvet banding. Over the gown is a cool black lace mantilla. The accompanying jewelry, which is almost as important as the dress, consists of a diamond and saphire clip at the V-neck, drop earrings and bracelets to match.

For other dining-out occasions in the picture, Hedy will be seen in a three-tone purple dinner dress. The crepe material is draped over her right shoulder, and falls down the front in two shirred panels.
Gloria Dickson, the new Mrs.
Percy Westmore, has in her trousseau a navy blue dress with short fitted jacket, slightly flared skirt and the recently revived lady jabots. A draped turban of self-material is worn with the suit.
"Romantic" is the word for Jane Bryan's hat and bag of paillasson.
Both the brim of the hat and the bag itself are heart-shaped, while the band of the chapeau and the handle of the handbag are removable so that ribbons to match any costume can be used.
Myrna Loy, who will be seen next as a beautiful aviatrix in "Too Hot to Handle," with Clark

Gable, wears a suit of whipcord combined with latex to fit her
freedom of movement. A diagonal zipper starts at the left hip and finishes at the right shoulder. The trousers fit tightly and fasten like jodhpurs over jodhpur shoes. From the waist up the suit is lined with brown suede. The small, rolled collar is of beaver, and the helmet of brown suede. Incidentally, Myrna has just received a silver charm bracelet from a Chinese fan—the charms, a pagoda, a sacred arch, a Buddha, a Chinese shoe, chopsticks and bowl, and a mandarin hat.

Ann Sheridan has solved the accessory-matching problem during cool weather with a big white straw envelope bag with a zipper cover to match any frock in her wardrobe. Watch for the one she carries in Warner's "Cowboy From Brooklyn."

I saw Eleanor Powell at a Hollywood night spot the other day in a white net evening gown with bouffant skirt, fitted bodice and dropped shoulder sleeves. The gown was embroidered with stars of brilliant and silver thread in graduated sizes. Her rhinestone belt was an attractive finishing touch.

Olivia de Havilland brought a dainty Victorian fashion revival back with her from England. The flat sash is stitched into various articles of clothing, such as the inner band of a hat or on the inner side of a belt.

Important Facts Of Direct Squeeze

By Harold Sharpsteen.

All squeeze situations thus far described have illustrated the single two-suit squeeze operating against opponent to the left of declarer. In all examples the actual squeeze was originated in de-
versary to discard a winner in one suit or unguard a winner in another. The forced discard has occurred before dummy, holding potential winners in both of these suits, was required to discard.

This variety of squeeze is known as a direct squeeze, requiring one definite opponent to guard two threatening suits, both of which are visible in dummy hand.

HAVE NO DEFENSE.

There is no defense against the direct squeeze because by the time the squeeze situation is reached, the opponent to be squeezed is helpless to prevent it.
This type of squeeze may be successfully projected against declarer's right-hand opponent only when dummy hand contains the squeeze lead and final quick entry card and declarer holds the two threatening suits. The play is still a direct squeeze with players' positions and the squeeze elements reversed. It should never be confused with the backward squeeze which is also applied against declarer's right-hand opponent.

FACTOR OF POSITION.

It is a simple matter to instantaneously recognize a direct single squeeze situation. The two suits containing potential winning cards will always be in one hand... dummy's or declarer's. Adversary to be squeezed must always sit directly in front of the two threatening suits held by declarer's side or there is no squeeze.

Home Has Cool And Dated Charm

By Elizabeth Boykin.

There's nothing very stylish about Lucy Belle's house, we were told. The other afternoon when we went by to call on her, we yet, as we sat there looking at over a silver tray of ice tea things, we thought we couldn't change it if we had the chance. Which is something. Because half the time we sit in a room we do it over in our mind's eye. But Lucy Belle's house seemed right in its cool and dated charm.

Out of the Shadows.
High ceilings, dark woodwork, deep cream walls—there is background against which there are those dark geometric oriental rugs that aren't used much anymore, and rather heavy dark carpeting. Deep red velvet furniture coverings in deep reds and hearty blue-greens—there you about have the picture. Out of the shadows of the corners gleam the scintillating blue of Ming vases and lamps with copper bases. We couldn't decide whether it was the high ceilings or the gloomy colorings that made the place seem so cool—like a deep forest glade. And the whole effect, although rather out of date, had a distinction about it, which reminded us again of something we've always believed about home decoration.

If you achieve a serene and basically beautiful effect in a room, it won't really ever look bad, as styles come and go. The sort of decorating that gets to looking silly later on is the fad and novelty.
But yet the fad and novelty aren't meant to last forever, and, and, and so if you get them with that understanding, you needn't worry.
They'll be like the crazy little hat you buy to wear one season as against the winter coat that must do for years.

Help Yourself.

In short, if you want to fix up your house for permanency and forget about it, buy enduring se-date things that are authentic rather than exciting. If you like doing the place over often and keeping abreast of fashion, then the unusual and dramatic things will appeal. So help yourself to the kind of living you like best.
Personally we like a changing scene—yet for Lucy Belle we think that a serene and timeless sort of room is just right.

MY DAY: Wife of President Enjoys Clam Digging

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

PATCHOGUE, N. Y.—Have you read "Youth Tell Their Story"?
It is a report by Howard M. Bell and may be bought for $1.50 from the American Council on Education, Washington, D. C. It is one of those rare documents about youth, in which youth has actually furnished the information. In this case we adults are being educated.

It is a careful survey of one state, the state of Maryland, because within its borders there is sufficient variety to typify conditions in a great number of states. Thirteen thousand five hundred young people between the ages of 16 and 24 were interviewed personally. The facts disclosed are enough to make every adult ponder a bit about the state of the nation. The implications for the future are of the greatest concern.

The majority of young people seem to expect more and more of government, but it is not apparent that they realize the implications of this attitude. In a democracy this must mean greater responsibility assumed by every individual citizen.
We open the way to undue control by one man or a small group of men.

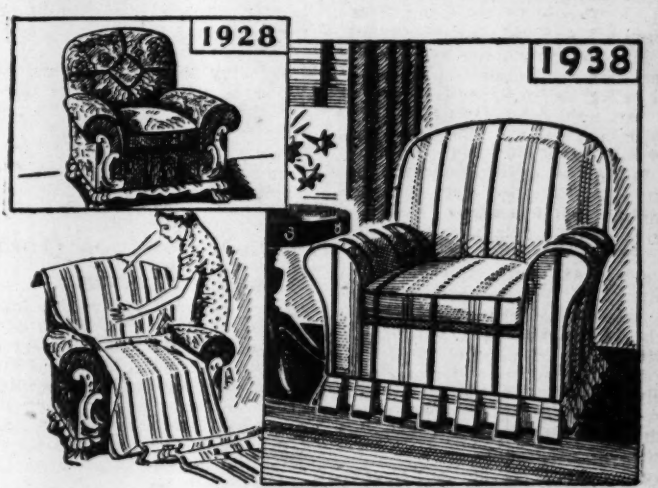

The wind blew some of our mosquitoes away yesterday, and we were able to walk in these entrancing woods. They have not been burned over, which unfortunately has been the case in much of Long Island. They are dark and mysterious at dusk, and when the sun is filtering through, they make one think of Robin Hood. Butterfly weed grows in profusion and is one of the most striking wild orange flowers I have ever seen. I wish I could import some of it to our shady spots at home. These woods shelter much game, and tracks in the sand keep one on the lookout for wild life.

I had my first experience in clam digging in this bay yesterday. In the past I have walked, comparatively dry, looking for holes in the sand and digging out my clam whenever I discovered him. Yesterday afternoon, however, we went out into the bay.
The wind had blown up some little waves and we could see no bottom, but the anchor was thrown over and I was told we would get out and rake clams. I was a bit dubious, but the water was only up to our chests.

It was fortunate our supper did not depend on me, for I raked up just one clam. The other ladies did not do much better, but we had one good fisherman with us, so we had an ample supply of little neck clams for supper. We landed at Fire Island with every intention of building a fire on the ocean side and broiling our steak while we watched the waves roll in. However, the wind blew too hard, so we found a sheltered spot in which to cook and eat. When we came home, the moon and stars were out and the little phos-phorescent bugs in our wake lit up the water. A great peace settled over us all. There is nothing like the great outdoors to wipe away the cares of the soul.

Smart Slip Covers Relieve Furniture of 'Dated' Look

What to do about that dated, stuffy looking chair? Put it in tune with 1938 by making a smart year-round slip cover for it.

In a jiffy you can stitch up a cover like the trimmings of a striped one that's pictured. Choose a stripe that picks up a dominant color in your living room. Where there's lots of brown an apricot cover, striped in brown and cream, is stunning.

For smart trimming, plan a box-pleated flounce with stripes running across, and for a finish —french seams with edges on the outside.

First step in making is to lay the material smoothly over the upholstery—wrong side out for French seams. Work from back to front, pinning down every 3 inches where seams will be.

Cut each section as you fit it
—1 1/2 inches outside pins for seams. To prevent material from bunching where arms and back round, take tiny folds or darts.
For arm fronts cut paper patterns.
Your cover shapes up in trim professional style.

Baste on the wrong side and try on. Stitch first on the wrong side, then on the right side about 1/4 inch from the edge.

Now, last of all, the flounce.
Join the strips, make and press the hem before pleating. Quickly you can line up neat, even pleats, put the finishing touch to your chair's smart new dress.

Barons Take Second Game 5-1, To Even Series With Crackers

RIGGS AND GRANT WIN IN DOUBLES; BOBBITT WINNER

Russell Paired With Guernsey, Champ Reese, Partner Default Match

SOUTHAMPTON, N. Y., Aug. 3. (AP)—Two unseeded Miami doubles combinations provided all the thrills in the opening rounds of the 48th annual Meadow Club invitation grass court tournament today as they eliminated two seeded teams and advanced into the quarter-final round.

The first upset was recorded by the newly-formed duo of George Toley and Gardner Fluloy, who ousted the second-seeded Murphy twins—Bill and Chester—of Chicago, 2-6, 6-1, 6-2, in a fast second round encounter.

The second Miami conquest was registered by Martin Buxby and Charles Harris, who defeated J. Gilbert Hall, of South Orange, N. J., and Gregory Mangin, of New York, 9-7, 6-2, and joined their townsmen in the bracket of eight.

The two other seeded teams came through with little difficulty. Top-seeded Sidney Wood, of New York, and Joe Hunt, of Los Angeles, dropped only one set in two matches. Bobby Riggs, of Chicago, and Bryan (Bitsy) Grant, of Atlanta, won in straight sets.

The match that drew the most attention, however, was that between Mort Ballagh and Verne Hughes, of Los Angeles, and Bobby Harman and Frank Kovacs, of California, which Kovacs and Harman captured, 7-5, 5-7, 6-4.

George Burghard and Giham W. Morris, Southampton, N. Y., won from Owen Anderson, Hollywood, and Marion Reese, Atlanta, Ga., by default.

The team of Frank Shields and Bob Kamrath was eliminated in the second round by Frank Guernsey Jr., of Orlando, Fla., and Russell Bobbitt, of Atlanta, 3-6, 7-5, 8-6. Other quarter-finalists are Don McNeill, of Oklahoma City, and Hal Satter, of Kansas City, Mo., and Ernie Sutter, of New Orleans, and Gilbert Hunt, of Washington, D. C.

But tomorrow both the doubles and singles quarter-finals will be contested.

Rice, Wyatt Win In Dub Net Tourney

Charles Rice and Bobby Wyatt, Frank Jones and Barnes Sales had time enough to eliminate their first-round opponents yesterday before rain put a stop to other matches in the annual city dub tennis tournament.

Rice won easily from Connie LeCraw, 6-3, 6-2. Wyatt defeated Buck LeCraw; Jones beat Charles Brooks in three sets, 2-6, 6-4, 6-2; and Sales downed Harry Cordes, 6-2, 6-2.

Other matches in the men's singles will be run off today. First round matches in the women's singles also are set for this morning with one match slated in the afternoon.

The complete schedule follows: Men's singles at 12 o'clock—Jim O'Callahan vs. Sid Underwood; 1 o'clock—Dudley Pitts vs. Bill Read; 2 o'clock—Paul Gleason vs. Billy Brooks; 3 o'clock—Charles Harker vs. Ed Wilks; 4 o'clock—Charles Harker vs. Ed Wilks; 5 o'clock—Robert Sims vs. Claude Parker; 6 o'clock—Edward Ford vs. Don Floyd vs. Ham Dabney; 7 o'clock—Parker Stillwell vs. Bob Howell; 8 o'clock—A. Graves vs. Willie Brown vs. Asa Wilson; 9 o'clock—Robert Sims vs. Claude Parker; 10 o'clock—Edward Ford vs. Don Floyd vs. Ham Dabney; 11 o'clock—Parker Stillwell vs. Bob Howell; 12 o'clock—A. Graves vs. Willie Brown vs. Asa Wilson. Women's singles at 12 o'clock—Fitzsimmons vs. Mrs. Tom Ball; Mildred Matthews vs. Pat Sudaker; 1 o'clock—Jeanne Fuller; Helen Hughes vs. Mrs. William Ward; 2 o'clock—Mary Wilkinson vs. Grace Mize; Marie England vs. Ann Allen and Mrs. Marjorie Ingram draw first-round byes.

Altmayer To Meet Mullin in Net Final

Finals in the Junior Chamber of Commerce tennis tournament will be played Friday night at the North Side Tennis Club courts, with Arthur Altmayer facing John Mullin. The match will begin at 8:30 o'clock.

Three-out-of-five sets will be played, and the matches are free to the public.

Twenty-six players entered the tournament. Several closely contested matches enlivened the meet.

Gab Hartnett Loses 12 Pounds in 6 Tilts

CHICAGO, Aug. 3.—(AP)—Charles Leo Hartnett has found that managing a ball club is the toughest job he ever has tackled in his 17 years in the majors.

Since he inherited the Chicago Cubs from Charlie Grimm 15 days ago, the tomato-faced Gabby says he never has suffered so in his life. He lost 12 pounds while his team staged six games and says that the bed in his hotel room is "just another piece of furniture." Going to bed, he says, just gives him more time to think about gored through four defeats in those games his team lost.

Meanwhile, Grimm is doing all right by himself. He gets $100 a day, $700 a week, for broadcasting games in Chicago—and he has a nice, 10-week contract. For the first time in weeks he's sleeping nights.

DOUBLE-HEADER TODAY BIRMINGHAM

2:00 P. M. 2:00 P. M.

All in the GAME

by Jack Troy

Those Barons Get Plenty of Hits-- But They Don't Get Enough

It has been rather difficult to understand why Birmingham, leading the league in hitting—having the two leading hitters—and being second in fielding, should be no higher in the standings.

But it is no mystery any more. The Barons just haven't got enough hits. That may sound strange, but it's a fact. For instance, if you get 15 hits in a game and get beat, 11 to 10, you haven't got enough hits. The other team may get less and beat you—if they get their hits in the pinch.

The Crackers are almost on the bottom in team hitting. They have won many a ball game in which they got no more than five or six hits and sometimes less. They won because they got the right hits at the right time. Clutch hitting is the answer to the Cracker situation.

The opposite is true of Birmingham. And that very satisfactorily explains why it is that a team leading the league in hitting is no higher in the standings.

Hustle has a lot to do with how a team fares, too. The Crackers scored two runs on the Barons Tuesday night without getting a hit. They hustled and made their own breaks. There were two errors by Bud Clancy. He made them because the Crackers were flying into first base.

But getting back to this hitting idea, one is reminded of something Manager Paul Richards said the other day. "I do not care," he said, "if we finish last in hitting. It's the hits when you need them that count. Take Johnny Hill. He has broken up many a ball game for us. One hit, in such a case, has served as well as a dozen."

If you happen to have the best defensive club and clutch hitting, plus an indomitable spirit and good pitching, you have all the ingredients necessary to success.

That goes for making a champion. The Crackers refuse to accept defeat. It doesn't seem to matter what the odds or the inning. They have something in reserve. They've got it in the clutch.

The "appreciation day or night" idea may be a good one because it is not often that a town has a ball club quite like the Crackers of 1938.

They are entitled to extra recognition.

GIVE THE BOY A HAND.

I seem to recall a lot of talk early in the season to the effect that Jack Bolling would not do as the successor to Alex Hooks.

It seemed that he lacked the height and also that he did not possess a spectacular stretch. He was no India rubber idjit on a spree.

And yet Jack Bolling seems to have done pretty well for himself—and the Cracker team. He makes the playing of first base look like child's play. He has all it takes.

He is, for one thing, a better fielder than Hooks and a much more dependable hitter. All Hooks ever had that Bolling hasn't and, by nature, never will have, is height.

But Bolling is tall enough. He provides a very satisfactory target and his added speed afoot means a lot, too.

THE OLD BALANCE.

One of the features of the Cracker team's success is balance. Several times this season there have been occasions that called for a number of quick changes.

And the Crackers, by the way, are quick-change artists. Say, for instance, someone bats for Russ Peters. What happens then when they take the field?

Well, Nip Lipscomb shifts over to short and Marshall Mauldin comes in from center to second. Cecil Dunn goes to first and Jack Bolling to center.

And this combination clicks very well indeed. Lipscomb is not one of the greater shortstops, by any means, but he can play the position well enough. Mauldin is a fifty-second baseman. Dunn handles first base very well. Bolling is a fine center fielder.

The Crackers pack a lot of versatility. Manager Paul Richards can, in addition to catch, play any position on the infield or any of the outfield positions in jam-up fashion.

Here is your championship club of 1938. They should go on to win not only the pennant, but the Shaughnessy play-off and the Dixie series.

They have the balance.

HAVEVILLE ADOPTS CHATHAM.

Baseball fans of Haveville adopted Buster Chatham last night. They could not have suited him better by having him out to dinner at the Green and White cafe, which is famous for its fried chicken.

It was not a large gathering, but what it may have lacked in size it made up for in genuine enthusiasm.

C. M. Davis was toastmaster and he said he understood Buster had aspirations to break some of Bobby Jones' records. The little shortstop recently took up golf. So they presented Buster with a nice gift.

He was instructed not to blame the balls when he got in the rough. And Buster promised he would do as he did once on a close play in a baseball game.

"I was low-rating myself on a close play and the umpire (Polly McLarry) thought I was talking about him. He threw me out of the game. It was the only time in my baseball career an umpire ever put me out. So if I get in the rough, I'll sort of speak low and hope the ball doesn't hear me."

Buster's fine record of service—seven years with the Crackers—his sportsmanship and value to his team were emphasized by Toastmaster Davis. These sentiments were echoed by all present.

Among those present were Rufus Mabry, D. H. Vaughan, L. E. Hall, J. B. Lee, D. W. Daniels, Marion McKown, D. W. Carter, C. E. Hood, W. C. Strickland, C. W. Garman, Emory Simpson, E. L. Harper, A. C. McLucas and C. M. Davis.

Haveville fans are going to have a big party for the Crackers and their wives on September 8. Plans were made at the testimonial dinner for Chatham last night. President Trammell Scott and Tubby Walton are to be invited.

It is to be quite a party and will serve as a sort of "appreciation night" from the fans of the community.

THE POTATO BALL.

"Well, I see John Hill is still hitting that potato ball," said Fresco Thompson.

"Potato ball, did you say, huh?" asked Randolph, the colored clubhouse attendant.

"Yeh, it's got eyes," Thompson explained. "Pitch him outside and he hits to right. Pitch him inside and he hits to left. Pitch him down the middle..."

"And I pop up," Hill cut in.

"That potato ball you hit can always find a hole in the..."

Burned Hand Made Everett Lefthander

Favorite in National Golf Tourney Reveals He Is Synthetic Southpaw.

RYE, N. Y., Aug. 3.—(AP)—It may not be a secret, but it's bound to cause some talk—Alvin Everett, one of the best players in the national left-handers golf tournament is only a synthetic southpaw.

After taking over the favorite's role by winning his first two matches by wide margins yesterday, while defending his title.

His switch to left-handedness came as a child after he had burned his right hand severely. He had to learn to do things with his left, so when he came to take up golf, he did that left-handed as well. His success in the shift is attested by the fact he was runner-up to Thorne last year, and placed second to Alex Antonio, of Linden, N. J., in this year's qualifying round. Antonio scored 156 and Everett 157.

Playing over the Westchester Country Club's course, Everett eliminated Thomas A. Carrick Jr., of Baltimore, 2 and 1, in the semi-finals after he had beaten Thomas F. Scholl, Glen Cove, N. Y., in the quarter-finals, 6 and 4. Everett, runner-up last year at Chicago, is favored in tomorrow's championship match.

Arthur J. Thorne Jr., of Detroit, was eliminated in the first round, the quiet-mannered golfer from Rome, Ga., revealed he had not always been a lefty.

Bobby Dodd Enters Two-Club Tourney

Entry List Mounts Steadily; Caddy Rule Suspended for Qualifiers This Afternoon.

By ROY WHITE. Bobby the Great (formerly One-Club) Dodd yesterday joined the two-club ranks and entered The Constitution's novel two-club tournament at Piedmont Park.

Dodd will qualify Friday afternoon and has selected Carroll Latimer, his personal scout in the recent Dodd-Ridley match, and Dave Black as playing partners.

"That No. 3 wood, which was beaten on the 18th green in the match with Ridley last week, will not be one of my weapons in the Two-Club Tourney and my only regret is that old Chick (The Shanker) Ridley is handling the event rather than a participant, could really tear him apart on that short Piedmont Park course with my irons," Bob said Wednesday in filing his entry.

WONT USE NO. 3 WOOD. The Georgia Tech backfield coach has not named his two clubs for the unique tournament, but since the No. 3 wood is badly worn he most likely will use two irons.

Charles Edwards yesterday fired a 72, two strokes under the previous low score, to take the lead for medal honors. Edwards, playing late yesterday afternoon, carded a 36-36-72, shot consistently all the way.

Qualifying rounds for the tournament will continue through Sunday afternoon, and every amateur player in the south is eligible and invited to participate.

It will not be necessary to hire a caddy this afternoon, as the rule requiring a caddy after 12 o'clock on week days has been suspended by the city parks committee for today only.

The Junior Chamber of Commerce has named Cliff Eley, Billy Street, Tommy Barnes, Atlanta's open champion, and Fain Peak, the Jaycee secretary, as its team.

Eley qualified Tuesday with a 76, only two strokes behind Sam Riddick, the leader. Barnes and Street will qualify either today or Friday afternoon.

WATL WARREN ENTER. WATL Wednesday filed its entry and named Ken Keene and Johnny Clarke as two of its team members. WGST entered Monday and Jack Kelley already has qualified.

Warren Arena was another team entry Wednesday and L. C. Warren has named Tarzan Bloodworth and Charlie Barnes, one of the leaders in the first half of the public links tournament, as two members of the team. The other two will be named today.

Davidson-Paxon's team of Chess Lagomarsino, Perry Jones, Joe Guzy and Jim Doran, will qualify at 5 o'clock Friday afternoon. Sears-Roeback has entered but will name its team today. The Sears team will most likely qualify Saturday or Sunday morning.

KLEIN ENTERS TEAM. Mackey Klein was another of the Wednesday entries with a "Klein's Beauty Salon" team. Other members of the foursome

DOUBLE-HEADER IS SLATED TODAY STARTING AT 2:00

If Weather Threatening, Game Time Will Be Set at 7:30 Tonight.

By JACK TROY.

After losing eight straight games to the Crackers, the Birmingham Barons finally broke through yesterday.

Early rain prevented the club from playing more than one game out at Ponce de Leon and the Barons took it, 5 to 1.

Manager Fresco Thompson's babes had a shutout with two Crackers out in the last half of the ninth. But Johnny Hill, who had walked, was on second and Emil Mailho drove him across with a sharp single.

OUTSTANDING MAILHO. The Crackers showed absolutely no punch outside of this one hit. They got six hits off the consistent pitching of Jim Prendergast, while the Barons, hitting timely for a change, collected eight off the combined offerings of Luman Harris and Larry Miller.

Harris allowed five hits in seven innings, with three runs. Miller yielded three hits and two runs in the last two innings.

BECKMAN AND SUNKEL. A double-header is scheduled this afternoon, starting at 2 o'clock. Bill Beckman and Tom Sunkel will pitch for the Crackers in that order.

The Crackers lost no ground by dropping a game yesterday. New Orleans, the nearest foe, dropped two games to Chattanooga. Nashville, winning, moved into second place, eight and one-half games back of the leaders.

At that rate, the Crackers could back into a pennant, but of course they are not figuring on anything like that. They'll be up and at the Barons today.

Yesterday was one of those days. They couldn't do anything with Prendergast and the Barons could do no wrong.

GLYNN SCORES. The Barons opened the scoring after two men were out in the first inning. Glynn led out a slow roller down the third-base line. Glynn stole second and when the bag was left uncovered, Richards' throw went into center and Glynn took third. He scored on Howell's double.

There were two out in the fourth when the Barons scored two more. Scott walked, Majeski singled past third and Crouch intentionally was walked to get to Prendergast, who doubled down the left-field line, scoring Scott and Majeski.

The Crackers got the first two men on in the fourth. Bolling bunted and beat it out and Hill singled. Lipscomb, however, hit into a double play and Rose fouled out to Thompson.

TWO OUT OF MILLER. The Barons polished off Miller, who replaced Harris in the eighth, for two more runs in the ninth. Thompson doubled and Crouch beat out a bunt. Prendergast fled to the mound and Thompson scored after the catch. Blue popped to Richards. Clancy walked and Glynn singled, scoring Crouch.

The Crackers finally scored in the ninth. Hill walked. Lipscomb and Rose were out. Then Mailho punched a single to center, scoring Hill. Peters forced Mailho, Thompson to Majeski.

Bim's Secret Is Out!

Joyce Tells 'Liss She Has Seen
Archie Ross Who Asked About Her

By KATHLEEN NORRIS.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE. William Ballard, an engineer successful as an inventor, loses everything, including the big San Francisco home, in the depression, the bank foreclosing and allowing him the use of a rundown ranch, La Perdita, near Merriwell and 31,200 year while he settles his affairs. The children and his wife Sarah are rebellious and helpless. Felicity, 24, doesn't know whether Archie Ross will marry her when he returns from Scotland, where he went to see his uncle after his father suggested just before the financial crash that Ballard invest $25,000 in the Ross business "for Felicity." Dora, 20, has been listless since wealthy Devereau Patterson left suddenly on a world tour. Ben, forced to quit college, sues Paul von Schwartz, who has changed Joyce's world by proposing. They reach the ranch on a dismal rainy day but Joyce, 19, absorbs some of her father's spirit as he milks four cows, feeds the chickens and gathers eggs. He stops talk of getting somebody to clean up the neglected ranch house by starting himself and they all help clumsily. While the parents are attending Cousin Laura's funeral Paul drives hat and insists that they all clean the yard. Laura leaves Ballard a large legacy but he stuns his family by announcing he will pay all his debts and devote the rest to assuring Sarah's and his future on the ranch. Mike Tallant, an Englishman who has been living in a shack far out on the ranch, becomes the "hired hand." NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

white light and velvet black shadows. "It's everywhere!" Joyce said. "There's so much of it! How wonderful fields are in moonlight!"

"Where'd Mike disappear to?" Paul asked.

"Oh, he never dines with us! He lives up there on the ridge and he always goes home to dinner."

"Is he in love with my girl?"

"In love with me!" Joyce laughed. "Girls don't seem to mean anything to him," she said. "But if he were you wouldn't be jealous of a hired man?"

She used the phrase as Mike himself had used it at the telephone a few days earlier. But instantly she regretted it; it didn't seem fair to Mike.

"He's not like most of 'em. But I'd be jealous of any one you like you! Listen, there's something I want to tell you—"

They were at the bars, looking down at the moon—washed world of the valley. Close to the fence on the other side Joyce saw something stir; a man's shadow down on the dry grass; a man with a pipe got to his feet, was facing them, Mike!

Instantly her senses were in complete confusion. He had been right there within a few inches of them while they talked; he had heard everything they said.

"Hello, Mike, didn't see you!" Paul said. And she knew from his tone that he was as completely embarrassed as she was.

"I'm sorry, I was hoping you'd move along and not see me! I often hang around here a bit and see that the cows are fed, and tonight I told your father that I'd go up to the dairy with him after supper. I'm really sorry."

"Nothing to be sorry about!" Joyce interrupted the somewhat halting sentences gallantly. "Only you've not had any supper."

"Oh, that!" he said carelessly. "I shall have something to eat when I get home."

They were all walking back toward the kitchen door now, before they reached it William Ballard's substantial figure suddenly blocked it and he called "Mike!"

"Here you are, sir!" Mike answered, joining him. Paul and Joyce walked away into the moonlight again. Joyce was in a state of youthful agitation not unmixed with rueful laughter.

"Oh, wasn't that awful! I said—he wasn't three feet away, he couldn't miss it! What on earth did I say? That I wouldn't marry him, that you said I'd be jealous of a hired man! I did say 'hired man,' Paul. Oh, I could die! He's so nice. How'll I ever look him in the face again!"

"What of it?" Paul asked. Back at the fence again now, he had his arm about her and her head was on his shoulder. "I was all true enough, and if a man takes a job like this he ought to be sensible about it."

"Yes, you're quite right, except that it sounded so cheap!"

"Oh, well, you should worry about him!" Paul said. "No one knows anything about him. He's probably been married three times!" They began to talk of themselves.

She stepped down from the train at Gilroy late in the languid hot June afternoon a week later, her linen suit crumpled, her face flushed and dirty from the heated cars.

"Oh, Ben, you were a darling to meet me!" she exclaimed joyfully. "Have a good time!"

"Oh, good time!" Words failed Joyce. "You'll hear about it until you're sick of it," she recommended. "There never was such a good time."

As the shabby Ballard car took the hill road, sweet restful air fanned Joyce's hot face; the infinite peace of the hills enveloped the nerves that had been jangled by too much happiness, too much amusement, too much noise.

"Dad gave Mike the kicking heifer," Ben said. "He was going to pay Mike for June, and Mike asked him what he intended to do with the kicking heifer. Dad said he was going to try to sell her for a milker, and Mike said he'd like her!"

"He's crazy!" Joyce said with an affectionate laugh.

"And if I don't sound like the prize pick," Ben drawled. His sister's joyous laugh broke out again.

She burst into the supper-time kitchen kissing, embracing everyone in turn, noting rather tardily that Mike Tallant was dining with them.

"Hello, Mike, I didn't see you. Dodo, darling, if you knew what a good time I've had!"

It bubbled from her all through the meal. Every one had been simply marvelous, and the fun, and the way they had laughed.

"And then, Mother, I was all packed up to go, and this Alice Goldthwaite who was staying there—"

"—we roomed together, and she is just a darling!—Alice had gone down to tell Paul I was ready, and then his mother—his stepmother, you know, but she's simply adorable, and crazy about his father. He says his father and mother got on each other's nerves terribly, so why stick together if you're completely wretched?"—his stepmother came in and said, "Joyce this is Monday and Paul's going Thursday; why don't you stay and see him off with the rest of us?" I'll wire your father. Oh, she was simply wonderful! So I knew you wouldn't mind—"

It was all jumbled together; she couldn't keep the pattern straight but it all had been bright.

"The first time we all went into town Alice Goldthwaite and I changed outfits and mine was so becoming to her she asked to keep it, and mother, hers is from Blainstene, designed for her by Onda, and dated and everything, wait until you see it—"

And in the mornings we'd all wander over to the club and watch the golf or sit on the porch. We rode before breakfast every morning—"

"Oh, and it's so good to get home and be telling you all about it," every section of the narrative ended.

Lissy and her parents and Mike Tallant played bridge-after-dinner. This it seemed was almost a nightly custom now. It was when they were all going to bed that Joyce had her first opportunity to tell Lissy an important bit of news.

"She went into Lissy's room, sat on the foot of the bed at Lissy's feet. The older sister was comfortably established against her pillows.

"Lissy, I saw Archie Ross," Joyce began.

"Home again?" Lissy asked trying for a natural tone. She had colored deeply, painfully, but she was not being proud, Joyce noticed with relief, she was not repelling confidences. Instead there was an odd look in her eyes, a look that made Joyce's heart ache with sudden fierce loyalty and pity.

How helpless a fine, proud, lonely girl was, when a man chose to be cruel to her!

"Let me tell you about it, Lissy. It was at the country club on Sunday. Joyce began her tale briskly. She talked for 20 minutes with no interruption from her sister. Archie, she reported, had been placating and friendly and simple. "He seemed sorry He wants—the next time you go into town, to have you telephone him, Lissy," Joyce finished.

FALLING HEROES.

A dog was the first parachute jumper. He didn't know it was going to happen before he went down the first time, but he did it and did it well.

The event took place in France on an August day in 1785—only three years after the invention of the balloon. Jean Blanchard was the owner of the dog, and he had first successful descent by parachute seems to have been made by another Frenchman, Jacques Garnerin. In 1793 he went up more than 2,200 feet above a park in Paris. Then he loosened his parachute and fell slowly to the ground. While he was going down, his balloon kept going up, and went so high that it burst.

A few years later Garnerin made another famous descent in a parachute. Thousands of English folk watched him rise about a mile and a half in the air. He stood in a basket two feet wide and four feet high.

A dome-shaped umbrella, 23 feet wide and made with heavy canvas, was fastened to the basket. The umbrella had a small hole in the center and was attached to the balloon net by a hoop.

Garnerin was able to break the connection between the parachute and the balloon, but what thoughts he must have had as he looked down a mile and a half. No doubt he trembled as he took leave of the balloon and started toward the earth. Down, down, he fell, holding fast to the swaying basket. At last he reached the ground. His basket struck the ground with force, and fell over, but except for a few small cuts the brave airman was not hurt.

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—(P)—

The backwash of a London gold rush tossed up ripples of buying in the yellow metal shares in Wall Street today, making cross-currents in the stock market's slow down drift.

The gold group rehearsed its familiar role in recent years of going counter to the main trend of stocks when capital in the world's money centers was moving underground to seek safety in the metal.

Reports more than $14,000,000 of gold had been bought in the open market in London, supplementing a recent steady flow of capital into gold, while the British pound was skidding to a new low shifted attention in speculative camps from the business recovery trend at home to events abroad.

While various explanations were advanced in financial circles for the slide in the pound and the revived hunger for gold, traders evidently thought it was the better part of discretion to lighten holdings a bit among stocks which had risen steeply in recent weeks.

Final losses in most stocks were moderate, however, and trading became extremely quiet on the downside. The Associated Press composite price of 60 stocks closed at 49, off 2 of a point. Transacted today, 817,160 shares against 817,640 yesterday.

A rally carried over into early trading from the preceding session. But only the golds found a firm footing in face of uneasiness caused by the continued decline in foreign currencies and the advance in the London gold price.

Among the golds, Homestake, representing the chief domestic producer of the metal, slumped nearly 2 to 65. Dome, Alaska Juneau and McIntyre were up fractionally.

Minor gains and losses also were mingled on the curb. Down a little were American Gas & Electric, Gulf Oil, American Cyanamid and Pittsburgh Plate Glass.

By Edgar Rice Burroughs

"He frightened the fellow to death," said Thetan. Herat laughed. "You win. Tarzan is free." Then he ordered Tarzan's friends, Gregory and Ogabi, brought to the arena. "Now which of you will fight the wild lion?" the king demanded. "I," Tarzan declared.
